

Powers Agree To Use Chinese Trial Courts

Will Gradually Abolish Present Extra-Territoriality Justice System

U. S. TO HALT BARGAINING

Delay to Naval Reduction Decision is Feared Through Aims of Powers

Washington—Extra-territoriality in China would be gradually abolished under an agreement reached Friday by the nine powers sitting at a Far Eastern committee of the arms limitation conference.

The committee appointed a sub-committee, headed by Senator Lodge, to work out details under which China would gradually assume entire control of the administration of justice.

The committee also discussed briefly the question of coastal control. The matter of leased territories was not reached.

The Chinese delegates Friday sent assurances to Secretary of State Hughes, chairman of the arms conference, that they had no intention of withdrawing from the parity because of objections to the semi-official British view calling for a virtual internationalization of China.

BRITISH EXPLAIN ATTITUDE
It is understood also that the British have informed the Chinese that misapprehensions regarding Britain's attitude toward China have arisen since a British semi-official spokesman suggested an international commission to take over the financial affairs of the Oriental republic. It was indicated that there is no intention on the part of Britain to push this suggestion in the conference.

Hughes Friday conferred with President Harding on the conference but declined to reveal the exact matters discussed.

The Far Eastern session beginning at 11 o'clock had the tongue twisting topic—extra-territoriality—to consider.

CHINA WANTS CHANGE
Reduced to the syllable "China," the meaning of the word is not clear. China wants the nine syllable word banished from the international dictionary as applied to China, but is not prepared to urge it too strongly—merely to ask that it be abandoned.

At present, citizens of powers interested in China are tried in their own courts. They hold the Chinese courts either unfair, corrupt, or unsuited to western civilization. But the great powers are not insisting on maintenance of the system, they are willing to scrap it if the Chinese courts are reformed.

Britain's interpretation of the Root resolution was deemed especially likely to arise. The fate of another British foster for maintenance of an Anglo-American shipyard during the naval holiday equipped to turn out a ship a year—was recalled. This feeler was squelched when British and American public opinion opposed it. A similar fate, according to an American delegate, probably awaits the latest "balloon" of Shanghai and Manchuria are likely to have an early place on the program.

The United States Friday was preparing to cope with a new danger to the success of the arms limitation conference.

This was a tendency on the part of some delegates to limit settlement of the naval armament limitation question for the apparent purpose of making a better bargain on Far Eastern matters.

While the Chinese angle of the Far East problem presented difficulties of its own Friday, these were distinct from the danger soon by the United States.

An American official told the United Press that it was an intention to withhold assent to a naval program until all angles of the Far East question had been canvassed. The "game" as this official termed it, is to see what terms can be arranged regarding the Anglo-Japanese alliance, Japanese and other foreign "spheres of influence," in China, Siberia and elsewhere, and if these terms are not satisfactory, to risk the agreement to the Hughes program until satisfactory bargains can be made.

The American delegation is determined to forestall this situation if possible. It was intimated Friday that within a few days the naval experts who have been working on proposed modifications of the Hughes plan will be called on to state their work. Then the United States will call on Japan and Great Britain to settle once for all the naval armaments problem.

EXPECT ARRESTS
IN $25,000,000
RUM PLOT EXPOSE

Philadelphia—Arrests and action by the United States attorney in connection with the alleged $25,000,000 rum plot uncovered here may be expected shortly. Prohibition Director Rutter indicated Friday.

A transcript of evidence implicating the head of an export firm here, a former high official of the local United States secret service and others in the alleged plot will be furnished Federal Attorney Colver, Rutter said.

WIFE LOYAL TO "WIZARD"

Mrs. Charles Ponzi

Boston—If you were the wife of a multimillionaire finance wizard—

And he lost his last penny—

And was thrown into prison—

Would you stay loyal to him and defend him while the whole world condemned him?

Would you leave his mansion and live in a five-room flat with his mother, awaiting his release?

Would you get back your old job as a stenographer to earn bread for yourself and his mother?

Well, Mrs. Charles Ponzi is doing just that.

Of course, you remember Ponzi. He promised clients to make millions in foreign exchange operations. Federal agents investigated and proved he was a financial faker. But—

"Charles was honest," Mrs. Ponzi steadfastly maintains. "He meant to do right by all. Why, he could have kept some of the $3,000,000 he gave back to investors if he hadn't been square."

"He could have buried a million and no one would have known the difference. But he didn't."

"I've had several offers to enter the movies but just can't capitalize Charlie's misery. It's all too tragic."

"Of course, it's lonely for us without Charlie—he was so kind and considerate. And let me tell you this—a man who's kind to his mother and wife can't be bad at heart to ward the rest of the world."

"Christmas—"

A wistful look came into Mrs. Ponzi's eyes.

"Christmas—I do hope they pardon Charlie before next Christmas. That's all I'm looking forward to."

U. S. OPPOSES SHIPS TOO BIG TO PASS CANAL

Naval Experts Discover Why
Hughes Suggested 35,000
Ton Battleship Limit

STOPS ARMS COMPETITION

Agreement Would Prevent Nations From Trying to Excel One Another

By David Lawrence
Copyright, 1921, by Post Pub. Co.
Washington—The real reason for the proposal of Secretary Hughes and the American navy that hereafter no battleships shall be built by any nation larger than 35,000 tons, is just coming to the surface. The United States does not wish to have any battleships too large to go through the Panama canal. Before the present conference was convened and the armament race was at its height, there was talk of 50,000 and 60,000 ton battleships to be built by Japan. This would have been met by the construction of American battleships of equal size but these vessels would have been valuable to the United States only in the Pacific where they would have had to be kept most of the time.

American naval policy, at least for the present, contemplates a fleet divided between the Atlantic and the Pacific and one of the chief values of the canal is that strategically it gives the United States great defensive strength. The disadvantage of having vessels in the Pacific which must round Cape Horn was conspicuously illustrated in the Spanish-American war when "Fighting Bob" Evans made his memorable trip from Pacific to Atlantic waters to assist the squadrons off the Cuban coast.

WOULD AFFECT FUTURE
The Panama canal is able at present to accommodate vessels with a displacement of more than 40,000 tons comfortably but the engineers who built the ditch did not contemplate the ships greater than 110 feet width. There are now no vessels affect as wide as this so the Hughes proposal affects only the future. It reads as follows:

"That no capital ship shall be built in replacement with a tonnage displacement of more than 35,000 tons."

"The Hughes plan," says an argument for the foregoing suggestion but naval experts now realize what was back of it.

When the Panama canal was built, there was considerable discussion about the future size of battleships and some engineers advocated a width of at least 120 or 130 feet and now exports are inclined to agree that the ditch should have been wider than 110 feet.

For length, the newest type of battle cruisers are approximately 900 feet long while the locks are not much more than 1,000 feet in length.

Under the Hughes proposals, the United States would scrap vessels Indiana, Iowa, Montana and North Carolina with an estimated displacement of 43,000 tons, the building of which has been authorized. Of course the larger the ship, the greater the size of guns and armament and therefore the more costly the whole vessel becomes. Just as soon as one nation builds a vessel of larger type than any other afloat, immediately all ships of preceding classes which do not carry as big guns are considered "obsolete" in the naval sense and the construction engineers turn their thoughts to ships of the larger sizes.

The Japanese battleship "Nagato" is the largest afloat and the United States has been building vessels to match Japan in that class. Similarly the Hood type of battleships built by Great Britain which are to be scrapped under the Hughes program are potential challengers in the armament race.

FATHER OF HARDING'S
"COUSIN" SHOTS SELF

Chicago—Ephraim Harding, father of Everett Harding, self-styled "cousin" of the president, attempted suicide at his home here Friday by shooting himself in the head with a revolver. Physicians at the county hospital said his condition was serious.

His act, police said, was probably due to impairment of his son Everett on charges of impersonating a federal officer while claiming he was a cousin of President Harding.

HERZOG MUST GO TO TRIAL NEXT MONDAY

Milwaukee—Bert Herzog, Manitowish, indicted by the federal grand jury last May on charges of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition laws, was refused a continuance of his trial here Friday.

He will appear in federal district court Monday morning, in denying his continuance, the court declared.

Eight cents is now the fare, Stone has orders to STOP TONIC BEER SALE

Milwaukee—James A. Stone, federal prohibition director for Wisconsin Friday received official orders from Washington halting the manufacture of medicinal beer in this state. Several breweries in this city had started the manufacture of the beverage and this sudden halt will again throw many of the men recently employed, out of work.

11,000 DOCK STRIKERS
TIE UP RIVER TRAFFIC

New Orleans, La.—River traffic was virtually at a standstill here Friday when approximately 11,000 dock workers went on strike.

Extra police were hurried to the river front to guard against possible trouble growing out of the appearance of 400 strike breakers.

ANOTHER LIFE GOES TO SATISFY GUNMEN IN POLITICAL FEUDS

Chicago—The "bloody nineteenth" ward political feud had claimed another victim Friday.

Nicola Adamo was shot and killed by three men.

Adamo was returning home from a club conducted by Philip D'Andrea, brother of the political leader, who was slain last spring.

Three brothers, Sam, James and Pete Genna are being held by the police.

Cologne—Four hundred American troops, stationed on the Rhine since the end of the war,

The Americans left for Antwerp where they will embark for New York.

Their departure was ordered in the natural course of the policy for reduction of the American standing army on the Rhine.

Name Crown Prince As Regent Of Japan

By A. L. Bradford
(Copyright 1921, by United Press)
Washington—Crown Prince Hirohito has been made regent of Japan.

A definite decision to name the 29 year old crown prince as the head of the Japanese empire has been reached.

The principal Japanese delegates here were advised Friday.

Crown Prince Hirohito is being made the regent of Japan because his father, the emperor, is in such a failing state of health that he can no longer attempt to discharge the duties of ruler of the empire.

It had been reported that the emperor, Yoshihito, has suffered a complete, mental and physical breakdown—that his mind is failing and his body is partially paralyzed. Several times he has been declared at the point of death.

The decision to name Hirohito regent was reached in consultations between the empress and the elder statesmen of Japan and the crown prince himself. The authority of the emperor's name also probably will have to be given to the appointment.

Count Chinda will be the regent's adviser—the most powerful position in Japan at the present time.

The move of appointing the crown prince regent is expected to have the most far reaching consequence.

The youth assumes office while Japan is in the throes of many important changes. The Japanese monarchy—the oldest in the world—is being forced gradually to respond to the spirit of liberalism and democracy which is slowly sweeping the empire; not many days ago, Premier Hara, a strong leader of the Japanese government, was assassinated; now Japan is participating in a great international conference which probably will strip her fleet of many of its proudest warships and which will subject her plans and ambitions in the Far East to close scrutiny and probably drastic revision.

Just what effect the becoming of Hirohito as regent will have on Japan's policies and participation in the present Washington conference is difficult now to foresee. One certain result, however, undoubtedly will be a noticeable increase of authority from the throne of Japan, as the present emperor's complete illness has left the responsibility of the empire almost entirely on the shoulders of the premier.

REVIVE CARNIVAL TO WELCOME FOCH

By United Press Leased Wire
St. Paul—Dignity and devilry are to mark the 24 hour visit of Marshal Foch to the twin cities.

The general will be feted by fireworks on his arrival here Friday night when St. Paul will revive her famous winter carnival.

Any costume that will lend color, anything that will make noise, are the requisites for appearance in the parade in his honor. Thousands will wear winter carnival costumes and famous marching clubs will be revived. Red fire and wild music will hail his entry.

ISSUED HUGE TOTAL OF FRENCH "NOTES"

St. Louis, Mo.—G. V. Halliday, 29, was held by police Friday without bond following his confession that he had counterfeited French certificates worth $1,500,000.

Halliday, whose brokerage firm recently went to the wall, admitted he had passed $60,000 of the certificates on St. Louis banks in an attempt to make up his losses, said to exceed $140,000.

Although Halliday confessed having 1,500 notes printed with a par value of $1,000 each, only $65,000 worth were placed on the market so far as known.

French Males Scamper From Vamping Maidens

Paris—Luckless man scurried to cover Friday when mobs of French girls combed the streets for husbands.

It was more violent than usual Friday because the ladies completely outnumbered the men, due to the war losses. This advantage prevented the men from making any defense and they were carried off bodily.

There was no question of being able to distinguish between the married and unmarried men.

"You can tell by the look in their eyes," one of the girls explained.

EXPECT PROGRESS ON IRISH PEACE THRU CONFERENCE

Craig Leaves for Belfast—Expect to Convene Dail Eireann in Dublin

By United Press Leased Wire
London—Sir James Craig went into conference with Premier Lloyd George Friday to hear the "alternative" proposals of the British premier for Irish peace.

Sir James will carry the proposals to Belfast where they will be placed before the Ulster parliament on Monday or Tuesday.

Craig was closeted with the premier for an hour. No statement was issued after the meeting was concluded.

Craig was expected to leave for Belfast Friday night.

Arthur Griffith and the other Sinn Fein delegates to the peace conference were on their way to Dublin Friday.

A call for a session of the Dail Eireann probably will be made in Dublin, so that they may give immediate consideration to the proposition, it was believed.

FEAR TWELVE MEN ABOARD TUG ARE DROWNED IN GALE

Life Saving Crews Comb Oregon Coast After Wreckage of Ship is Discovered

Portland, Ore.—The Red Stuck tug Sea Eagle, with a crew of 12 men, has foundered off Peacock Spit, captain Wicklund of the Port Adams life saving station, informed the United Press Friday.

A patrol from the station late Thursday found a portion of the tug's pilot house, indicating the vessel with its crew had met disaster in the gale which raged until late Thursday night along the coast of northern Oregon.

Furniture from the tug's cabin with a pair of oars marked "Sea Eagle," had been found earlier in the day. Patrols were combing the beaches early Friday in a search for additional wreckage and bodies that may have washed ashore.

The Sea Eagle was enroute to Astoria from San Francisco.

Briand Is Unmoved By Verbal Battle With Lord Curzon

Premier Embarks for France Happy in Progress Made by Limitations Conference and Determined to Rush Army Reduction

OFFERS HELP TO GERMANY

Remove Two World Menaces of Pan-Germanism and Bolshevism and Laying Down of Arms
Will Follow, French Leader Says

New York—"One discordant note cannot spoil the success of such a conference as is in session at Washington," Premier Briand of France declared here Friday. With these words he waved aside Lord Curzon's London speech criticizing France as militaristic.

"The arms conference has begun well; it is a triumph for the United States, and a wonderful thing for peace. Now Germany knows we do not stand alone: now perhaps she will begin moral disarmament. As for Lord Curzon—well, we know these little family affairs they have in England. That voice is not going to spoil the conference."

"I prefer to consider what Balfour said at Washington as the voice of Britain, rather than to pay attention to pin-prickings reported in the press."

The French statesman was in the highest of spirits as he sood on the bridge of the French liner Paris, waving farewell to a small but enthusiastic crowd of French-Americans which had come to bid him "bon voyage" as he sailed for home.

WONT GO TO LONDON
The premier laughed at the suggestion he would go to London before Paris, to see Lloyd George.

"I am going home," he said, "I am going to tell the French people that the Washington conference is going to be a big success and push forward our plans for reducing our arms."

"The policy of France will remain what it is, however, despite the objections of other nations. Otherwise I would not head the government."

"We are going to maintain our security and the liberty of our people, even at the cost of heavy military burdens. No country wants a peace more than France, but no country loves liberty more than France. And if we laid down our arms, we exposed our flank to the menace of the old reactionary Germany."

GERMANS TRYING HARD
The new German government is doing its best and I hope that within the next few months my work in Franco may be able to cooperate with them. If Germany develops the will to peace, as Mr. Hughes called it, that is all that is necessary. Franco is ready to hold out her hand.

"As to reductions, I have outlined at Washington just how far we are prepared to go. Voluntarily, and threatened with a danger which does not exist for nations with navies, we have gone further with our cuts and reductions than any of them. How ridiculous would a country that asks to keep the largest navy appear in asking its neighbor to reduce a security army? What are capital ships for anyway? Against whom will they be used? Alligators?"

"Here is the whole question in a nutshell," Briand said. "Let the world assist in removing forever the two menaces to civilization against which France now stands as the immediate guard, pan-Germanism and bolshevism, and France will go as far as anyone else in laying down her arms. Do not suppose we are joy for a minute the burdens of taxation caused by our army."

SIX AUDITORS TO
TAX SHORTAGES

Millions Expected to Pour Into Badger Treasury Following Checkup

By United Press Leased Wire
Madison—The state tax commission indicated Friday that by the beginning of next week it will have at least six additional auditors on the job inspecting income tax returns.

This announcement came following a recent report of numerous corporations of the state having been suspected of making erroneous or fraudulent income tax returns.

Major E. A. Fitzpatrick, secretary of the state board of education, in charge of the soldier educational bonus funds, and Col. J. G. Salsman of the soldiers' recognition board, declared Friday they were well pleased with the work of the commission.

They say these fraudulent or erroneous returns were keeping thousands of dollars from the soldier bonus fund where they rightfully belonged.

With $5,000,000 being added to the income tax assessment through the work of four field auditors of the tax commission in checking up and correcting returns of but 23 corporations of the state, far larger exposures are expected before the first of the year.

DENY MINE STRIKE HAS BEEN ENDED

Walsenburg, Colo.—Although prohibited from holding mass meetings, striking miners in the southern Colorado fields Friday declared that despite restrictions placed upon them by state rangers the strike against the Colorado Fuel and Iron company had "just begun."

Ranger officers held that mass meetings would tend to incite violence. The number of union miners returning to work increased slowly each day. Production also showed a slight increase.

SAY PIPE LINE GAVE
WISCONSIN ITS BOOZE

Milwaukee—A pipe line several miles in length was reported here Friday in the confession of a bootlegger, to be supplying a vast amount of whiskey into Wisconsin and near-by states from Canada.

Prohibition officers from Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota are said to have been dispatched to the vicinity of the "booze artery," which is said to be located near International Falls.

According to the confession, the pumping station is situated in a wild country far from any cities in Canada. The pump, it is said, is in an old hunting lodge. The receiving depot is also said to be located in an obscure place, from which whiskey is carried to waiting automobiles.

By United Press Leased Wire
Milwaukee—Ralph B. Yewdale, 29, assistant professor of history of the University of Wisconsin, was found dead in his home here Friday with a bullet wound over the left eye. An investigation by the county coroner reported the shooting was accidental.

Yewdale, according to his mother, had gone upstairs to rock his cradle, saying he was going to bed. Shortly after having gone to his room, the mother hearing a shot, rushed upstairs and found him lying on the floor with a 45 Colt automatic pistol in his hand.

A physician was called who pronounced him dead. Yewdale is a son of M. H. Yewdale of this city, president of the J. H. Yewdale and Sons Printing company.

Editor Post-Crescent — One would think from reading some recent communications in the People's Forum that in order to build a viaduct at Cherry-st., the bridge at Lake-st. would be removed. Lake-st. bridge would remain and, relieved of half its traffic, the hospital would be quickly reached and the fire department have easy access to the Fourth ward.

Salvi Wins Lasting Niche In Memory Of Music Lovers

Famous Young Harpist Thrills Great Audience With Splendid Concert

Alberto Salvi, young Italian harpist who played in Lawrence Memorial chapel Wednesday evening in the Community Lecture and Artist series, presented the finest concert of the year according to musicians and music critics who heard him. The harpist's technique, combined with his light touch and joy in interpretation makes him a genius who can hold an entire audience spell-bound eagerly listening to each variation of mood in the music.

From the first number, "Fantasia di Bravura, Op. 11," by Schuoker to the final encore, "Mother MacChree," Mr. Salvi made his harp sing into the very hearts of his listeners. The first number was a brilliant display of the artist's technique and the possibilities of adapting the most difficult musical selections to the comparatively little played instrument. In his interpretation, the artist brought out all the light and tinkling notes in the harp as well as the more common piano like notes.

ENTHUSIASTIC AUDIENCE

Several of the numbers which the harpist included in his program were written by himself or rearranged for the harp from noted musicians who composed for other instruments. His own, "Valse de Concert," was among the best numbers. It was a light and tinkling little piece with a merry and pleasing melody, all too short for the eager audience. Another splendid display of the technique of the artist as a composer as well as a harpist was afforded by his "Italian Serenade."

After this number the audience was insistent for an encore, which was another selection emphasizing the light and tinkling qualities of the instrument.

Tedeschi's "The Music Box" as played by the young musician won for the ever popular number a new place that same lulling and light spirit combined with the more lively and passionate music characteristic of the Spanish people.

PLAYS ENCORE NUMBER

Although there was some difference in opinion concerning the best number on the program, four were the most commented upon. They were the first number, "Fantasia di Bravura," "The Norwegian Ballade" by Foenitz, "The Music Box," and his own "Valse de Concert." The Norwegian number had a beautiful melody and rhythm which carried one along through the entire selection in a joy ous appreciation of the power of music.

The last number "Tarentelle" by Apollonius and rearranged by himself met with tremendous and persistent applause. After several curtain calls he responded with the popular number, "Mother MacChree." His variations of the melodies of this song which is known universally were exceedingly pleasant.

Prof. and Mrs. R. C. Mullenix entertained Mr. and Mrs. Salvi at dinner before the concert. The young couple have only recently been married and the bride is accompanying her artist husband on his tour of the country. When Mr. Salvi was in Appleton three years ago he was a guest in the Mullenix home.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Rev. J. B. Koehn, D. D., L. L. D., will complete his engagement here next Sunday, Nov. 27. Dr. Koehn is a preacher, lecturer and writer of national repute and is not ordinarily available as a pulpit supply.

His engagement here was made possible because he needed time to complete the manuscript of another book, which is to be published shortly.

Those who have heard him have been greatly impressed by the scope of his subject matter and his ability as an orator. He is evangelistic in all his discourses.

His subject Sunday, 11 a. m., will be "The Resurrection," 7:30 p. m. Try to hear him one or both services. Everybody welcome. Adv.

URGE FARMERS TO HEAR COMINGS AT FORUM GATHERING

Wisconsin Lieutenant Governor to Discuss Nonpartisan League

George F. Comings, lieutenant governor of Wisconsin, who will be the speaker at Sunday evening's meeting of the People's Forum in Lawrence Memorial chapel, is delighted with this opportunity to discuss the farmer movement known as the Nonpartisan league before an Appleton audience, he declared in a letter to Dr. Samuel Plantz, chairman of the forum program commit-

People having discarded too. Mr. Comings said his subject will be "Conservatism vs. Pro-gressivism" and that he will give an explanation of the agrarian revolt of the northwest and also of the program which was enacted into law after the Nonpartisan league had control of the state legislature in North Dakota.

This lecture will be of special interest to farmers and it is believed that hundreds of persons from the rural sections will attend. The meetings are free but a collection will be taken to defray expenses.
It is desired that an immense crowd greet the lieutenant governor.
He is a fluent speaker and understands the Nonpartisan league as well as any man in the country. He has been speaking quite frequently of late and his addresses have made remarkable impressions.
The meeting is to begin promptly at 7:30 with a musical program and the speaker will begin at 8 o'clock.
The question which Mr. Comings will discuss is of greatest importance and merits the consideration of everyone.

STRING QUARTET TO APPEAR IN RECITAL

The Pullinwider String quartet, assisted by Prof. Frank A. Taber, Jr., at the organ will appear in concert at Lawrence Memorial chapel Tuesday evening under the auspices of Lawrence Conservatory of Music.
The quartet which has already won favor not only in Appleton but also in Oshkosh, Neenah and Green Bay will present a varied program of chamber music.

The personnel of the quartet is as follows: Percy Pullinwider, first violin; Marion Miller, second violin;
Ruth Schumaker, viola; Joseph Zickler, cello. One of the numbers which the quartet will play is "Variation on a Theme by Grieg" arranged by Ludolph Arens and dedicated to the Pullinwider quartet. They will also play "At the Cradle," by Grieg, arranged for a string quartet by Percy Pullinwider.
Other concerts in the conservatory artist series are Prof. Frank A.
Taber, Jr., Dec. 8; Dean and Mrs.
Carl Waterman, Jan. 10; and Mrs.
Winifred Willson Quintan, Jan. 31.

PLAN MONUMENT FOR WAR VETERANS

Residents of the town of Maine have been raising funds for several months for a memorial tablet or monument for their 45 former services men, four of whom were killed in battle. One hundred and fifteen dollars have been raised and it is the intention of the committee to increase the amount to $200 or over.
With this purpose in view the committee is making elaborate arrangements for a social and dance at Ben Mills residence on next Monday evening. It is possible that a delegation of members of Oney Johnston post of the American Legion will attend.

CONFER K. P. DEGREES
Forty members of Knights of Pythias lodge of Appleton conferred the third degree on a class of candidates at Fond du Lac Tuesday evening. Following the initiatory service the Appleton knights were guests at a supper. Addresses were delivered by several members.

Piles

Can't Be Cured from the Outside External treatments seldom cure Piles.
Nor do surgical operations.
The cause is inside—bad circulation.
The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.
The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.
To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through the stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method. Ointments and cutting won't do it.
J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription Hem-Roid and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Schilnitz Bros.
Co., Appleton, Wis., and druggists everywhere, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer. Adv.

This Is Your Last Chance To Vote On Bridge Location

Today is the last time the informal ballot on the location of the Cherry-st. bridge appears in the Post-Crescent. All ballots must be mailed not later than Saturday night so that a complete report of the vote can be ready for publication early next week. The ballots and the tabulation will be sent to the highway commission to enable it to determine the sentiment here on the location of the bridge.

Of the 94 votes received here since Wednesday noon, 74 favored location of the bridge at Cherry-st. and 20 wanted it at Lake-st. The totals now are 629 for Cherry-st. and 203 for Lake-st.

Inasmuch as this will be the last opportunity Appleton people will have to indicate their preference on location of the bridge it is expected that an immense number of ballots will be mailed before Saturday night.

It is imperative that every person in the city who has the interest of the city at heart indicate what solution he would favor for this great bridge problem.
In Wednesday's Post-Crescent
Oscar F. Welssgerber, city engineer, gave a detailed explanation of the city's bridge problems, presenting four propositions. Only two of the propositions are seriously considered by the city at this time—the Cherry-st. and Lake-st. bridges and the engineer went into detail explaining both of them.
If you want the highway commission and the city council to know how you feel about the bridge matter tear off the ballot printed below, check your preference and mail or bring to the Post-Crescent.

WINTER USE OF HIGHWAYS

The question of removing snow from our permanently improved highways during winter is one which is certain to become more important each succeeding year as the extension of good roads progresses. The building of concrete highways represents a large investment. It is an investment from which we ought to receive the maximum return, and when it is comparatively idle during several months of the winter season the returns are obviously limited. Furthermore, the construction of concrete roads materially increases traffic over them. Aside from motoring for purposes of pleasure there is a vast amount of commercial traffic. It is obviously to the interests of taxpayers and to communities served by these arteries of travel that they be open to use at all times.

At the same time, the removal of snow is a difficult and expensive public service. Perhaps with the appliances now at hand it would be too costly for the benefits conferred. The problem is to perfect methods for snow removal that will make the cost non-prohibitive. It is a problem of resourcefulness and doubtless in due time it will be solved with reasonable efficiency and economy. The point is that with the rapid extension of concrete roads we should keep in mind the desirability of having these avenues of communication open twelve months in the year. Already there is public demand for this service and it is certain to grow. Tests and experiments will gradually lead to the perfection of the right system, and the time is at hand when experiments should be commenced.

ECONOMIC WASTE OF POOR EYESIGHT

Our waste as individuals and as a nation has long been a source of wonder to the more frugal countries of the world. Complacency in accepting existing conditions has seldom brought us to a point where we combatted with energy our extravagance in men, material, equipment and supplies. It has taken the present economic crisis to awaken a latent desire to eliminate this national trait. Fortunately, at this opportune moment, comes the report on elimination of waste in industry which Herbert Hoover and seven prominent engineers have evolved from an intensive study of typical American industries.

The Hoover report should make us think. More than that, it should impel us to study the constructive suggestions it presents. Much in the Hoover report should quicken the conscience of management, labor and capital. It lays the blame for wastefulness where it properly belongs. But further than that, it delves into new fields, exposing sources of industrial waste which in the past have scarcely been given serious thought.

Such is that portion of the report dealing with the effect of poor eyesight upon the quality and quantity of production. Hitherto we have generally regarded eye conservation in industry as concerned with appliances to prevent eye accidents or with proper arrangement of illumination. Now comes the Hoover report with some emphatic and irresistible points to show that a large percentage of waste is due to the fact that 25,000,000 American workers have sub-normal vision. When we realize that this represents more than fifty per cent of the average number of men and women employed in industry in the United States, the figure appalls us. But what strikes home first is the needlessness of it all. This industrial waste through defective vision, as the Hoover report shows, is not the result of labor turnover, or lack of cooperation, or any of the other elements which enter into the development of industry. It comes solely through ignorance, through a past inability to realize the importance of the subject and its vital effect upon production.

The remedy lies in an educational campaign. There must be an appreciation by labor of the advantages of good eyesight, and management must be taught how much is to be gained by aiding workers to a vision adequate to meet the requirements of the work in hand. This means general eye examinations and the establishment of standards fitting the grades of work. Much lies in the field of future study. It is apparent at once that the correction of the sub-normal vision will bring not only increased earning power to the individual, and increased production to management, but will afford a better health condition among the millions who are going through life with the handicap of poor eyes. Those who are not educated to the value of good eyes will have happiness thrust upon them by the adoption of universal eye examinations in industrial America.

FARMERS IN BUSINESS AND POLITICS

That the farmers ultimately will carry on "all their business through agencies of their own creation, directed and governed by themselves," was the prediction which Mr. Charles S. Barrett, president of the National Farmers' Union, made at the association's annual convention in Topeka, Kansas. Besides having a national marketing system, it will be necessary for agriculturists, he added, to take an active interest in politics and exercise vigilance over legislation.

What the farmers must exert themselves to secure, he declared, are: Large reduction of railroad freight rates; reduction of interest and discount rate, with farm paper on the same basis as prime commercial paper, divorcement of the Federal Reserve board from all interests except the people's; farmers' banks, owned by farmers, and a cooperative buying and selling law.

Agriculturists are business men. They are proprietors of productive plants. They grow the foodstuffs which keep the residents of the cities alive and the raw materials of which clothing is made. The millions who dwell in the cities and towns are dependent vitally on the agricultural business.

On the other hand, those who are engaged in farming pursuits depend on the city population for success and profit. The market for farm products is where thousands or millions of people work and live. Whereas, on one hand, city dwellers cannot exist without the products of agriculture, farmers cannot thrive in business unless their customers have enough money to pay fair prices. The inter-dependence must not be overlooked.

The most important need of farmers is a national cooperative marketing system, and such a system, properly supervised or regulated by the federal government, would be a real benefit to the farm business. It would not be detrimental to the consumers of farm products. In fact, the point of view which must be taken is that it should help the farmers, yet not financially or otherwise injure the consumers. Agricultural organizations should be guided by the mistakes which capital and labor organizations have made. They will then get everything they need.

WITH THE EXTRAS

The delegates are relatively few, altogether they are but a score or two. But they sure have brought along an extraordinary throng. To assist them in their labors of converting swords and sabers into plows.

For each delegation carries clerks, attaches, secretaries, couriers and guards and flunkies, burly secret service hunkies; And they clutter up the traffic with assistants stenographic. With interpreters and aides, butlers, valets, chambermaids. Experts naval, diplomatic, military, bureaucratic. Each headquarters fairly swarms with a flock of uniforms. Of its aide-de-camps and secretaries; clerks are busy making entries. In a lot of bulky books, while in corners and in nooks. Messengers and porters lurk trying to appear at work.

Fervent the life that swirls round the Washington hotel. Round the various legations of the peace-conferring nations. Every delegation that gathers here has trailing it: A huge secretariat like the tall behind a comet. For it takes a lot of capers by a bunch of secretaries. And a lot of notes and papers penned by super-numeraries. And a lot of furs and feathers of worry and alarm. When the nations get together to disarm.

THE PREVENTION OF GOITRE

In the United States, particularly in certain regions such as the Great Lakes basin, and the Cascade mountain region of Oregon, Washington, and British Columbia, in Canada, simple goitre prevails among girls from 11 to 17 years of age, the cause being totally unknown. Since the cause is unknown, there are innumerable speculative theories which ascribe the cause to something in the drinking water or the food.

Drs. David Marine, of New York, and O. P. Kimball, of Cleveland, whose great success in preventing simple goitre among the school children in Akron, O., has been referred to here, have recently given a supplementary report of their investigation. They find that, although the ultimate cause of simple goitre is unknown, the immediate cause is not anything present in the drinking water or the food, but something lacking, namely, iodine. They suggest that certain types of infection which increase the iodine needs of the body may be a cause. Anyhow goitre is prevalent where the purest of drinking water is used, as in Portland, Ore., and Seattle and Tacoma, Wash.

Drs. Marine and Kimball give these results of two and one half years' observation of schoolgirls in Akron: Of 2,190 pupils, taking two grains of sodium iodide twice a year, only five have developed enlargement of the thyroid gland; while of 2,305 pupils not taking this preventive, 495 have developed thyroid enlargement. Of 1,182 pupils who had some enlargement of the thyroid when the preventive treatment was instituted, 773 showed a decrease in the enlargement of the neck; while of 1,048 pupils with some enlargement at a time the treatment was started, but who did not take the treatment, only 145 showed a decrease in enlargement. These data pretty thoroughly establish this prophylactic treatment for general use.

Drs. Kimball and Marine find that there is no danger worthy of consideration associated with the administration of the small amount of iodine, or iodides, which have proved sufficient. The treatment not only prevents, but in many cases brings about cure of simple goitre. Grams are Greek to most laymen and some doctors. A gram is approximately 15 grains. Taken an ample daily dose of sodium iodide, last taken dissolved in at least a pint of drinking water, is one grain. This quantity should be taken by the girl daily for two weeks, each spring and autumn, as a prophylactic against goitre. For a girl who already has a slight thyroid enlargement the same amount, one grain daily, should be given for a period of six weeks twice a year. This dose is less than was formerly suggested, but it proves sufficient. Any other form of iodine would be equally effective. One drop of tincture of iodine each day, in water, for instance.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Healthfulness of Basketball
We are high school girls, and play basketball. Some people are always advising us that it is dangerous or harmful to play when we are unwell. They say it will surely prove harmful in later life, if not right away.

Answer—Menstruation is a function, not a disease, so it is improper to refer to it as "being unwell." I assure you that basketball affords every day activities or games, such as swimming, walking, tennis, skating and the like, may be played with perfect safety and benefit at the time of menstruation. In fact, it is rather harmful to a woman's health for her to interrupt her usual activities or to coddle or pamper herself like an invalid just because she is a woman.

Beer Is Frothy Stuff

Kindly advise whether a young girl who wishes to gain weight should drink root beer as served in the five and ten cent stores. There doesn't seem to be any clean place to drink milk. —(C. B.)

Answer—No. The place where one drinks milk matters little, if the milk is clean and pure as purchased. A glass of milk is more nourishing, and therefore better for a girl who wishes to gain weight, than nine glasses of root beer would be. However, as an occasional beverage, root beer is perfectly harmless and wholesome to drink.

Posies Growing in the Room
Is it injurious to health to sleep in a room where there are about two dozen geranium plants growing in pots? —(A. M. A.)

Answer—Plants of any kind growing in a room absorb carbon dioxide and give off oxygen, hence they tend to purify the air for animals or men. If in porous earthen pots, they add further to the wholesomeness of the atmosphere by giving off moisture, and one of the most serious faults with indoor heated air in the winter season is that the air is too dry. So the more growing plants in the house or sleeping room the better.

Militarism In The Nursery

By Frederic J. Haskin

Haskin
The children of the coming generation grow up with the belligerent ideas that destructive toys are bound to instill.

"Night now," she points out, "children are doing terrible things. Some French children stabbed their mother to death recently. And from other countries stories of child criminals have been coming. Why? All through the war children have seen and heard about destruction, and, besides, have had so many destructive toys."

"All through history the characters and careers of men have been shaped by their playthings. Napoleon played with toy cannons. Hannibal, as a little boy, held a sword bigger than himself and swore vengeance against the Romans. Frederick the Great had weapons for toys."

"On the other hand, the boy Mozart played with a violin, and Titian played in the woods, painting with juice of berries."

Further light on the importance of the apparently trivial toy soldier was shed several years before the recent war by Mrs. F. N. Jackson in her book on toys.

She quotes many in stances of the toy soldiers of princes of several centuries ago. Thus, Louis XIV paid 6,000 francs for "an army of cardboard soldiers finely painted, for His Majesty the King to give to Mousneville, Dauphin. This miniature army consisted of 20 squadrons of cavalry, 10 battalions of Infantry. They later on replaced by the little silver army made by Merlin, the silversmith, in the seventeenth century, from artistic models. Not only were the men and horses made, but also guns and other machines of war."

These silver men-at-arms and their toy cannon were later melted for their silver when the king began to play with human soldiers and cannon and needed money for his wars.

ROYAL INFANTS HAD SOLDIER TOYS

Nearly all kings have played with soldiers and guns when they were children. Now that kings are almost obsolete, what the modern princeling plays with is not especially important. The toys of the average child are what count.

Mrs. Stoner thinks that parents are mainly responsible for a child's interests. Children would not be so eager to play with toy pistols and soldiers if their parents did not when they are very small begin to encourage them by gifts of such toys.

Thus the soldier idea is implanted. To be a soldier, the child insists on having a gun. And when he grows up with the desire to exchange the toy gun for a soldier's bayonet, the distracted mother wails that her boy always seemed to take to weapons.

Q. Did the Congressional Committee that investigated the steel strike of 1919 recommend an anti-strike law? G. M. A.

A. The Senate Committee on Education and Labor in its report of its investigations of the steel strike of 1919 did not recommend anti-strike legislation, but did suggest the establishment of a board or commission which it believed would minimize the danger of strikes.

Q. Why is a little red cap worn by Turkey called a fez? C. N. S.

A. Formerly Fez, a capital of Morocco, was the chief place of manufacture of the red fez cap. The word "fez" was produced from the word "Fez" by a berry grown nearby. The word "Fez" was produced from the word "Fez" by a berry grown nearby.

Q. Please tell how to write 765 in words. W. E.

A. Seven hundred and sixty-five. Seven hundred and sixty-five. Seven hundred and sixty-five.

Q. Which is the older process in steel making, the Bessemer or the open hearth? R. L. L.

A. The Bessemer process in steel making dates from 1856, while the open hearth process was developed in 1854.

Q. Which is the best picture of Christ? J. D.

A. Art critics are almost unanimous in agreeing that the head of Christ in the picture by Titian (Christ with the Tribute Money) now in the Dresden Gallery is the best. The figure and face of Christ, contrasted with that of the Pharisean temple, gives the former a sublimity not found in any other work.

Q. What is the origin of the expression "The cups that cheer but not sicken"? W. A. G.

A. The phrase is found in William Comyns "Task" which was published in 1225. The phrase "to cheer but not sicken" had been employed previously by Bishop Berkeley.

Q. How much was the coin called the pygma? V. K. D.

A. Pagodas were silver and gold coins of various kinds and values, formerly current in India. The star pagoda of Madras had an intrinsic value of $1.50 to $1.75.

Q. How did the interrogation point originate? S. P.

A. Probably the question mark originated in the placing of the letter q over the letter o, these being the first and last letters of the Latin word questio, meaning question.

Q. Please give some information about the Rosicrucians? R. W. E.

A. Rosicrucians were the members of secret societies, professing to be philosophers, but in reality charlatans, who in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries made themselves conspicuous by claiming to be possessors of secrets of nature including the power to transmute the base metals into gold, to prolong life by the use of elixir vitae, to have a knowledge of passing events in distant places, and to discover hidden things by the application of the Cabala. Rosicrucianism stood in some connection with Freemasonry and owed its vogue in the eight century to the passion for secret associations and for pseudoscience.

Resume of American and Foreign Newspaper Opinion

The American "Scapa Flow"

Foreign delegates to the Conference on Limitation of Armaments expected to find "a solemn, diplomatic gathering." Instead, the BALTIMORE SUN (Ind. Dem.) says, it opened "with a class in arithmetic and economics by Professor Hughes," who, in a "direct, American style of business diplomacy," proposed "disarmament that is disarmament in terms which the WASHINGTON STAR (Ind.) thinks 'the only way to peace'."

"The arresting force of an ultimatum," the government of the United States "has made a practical, concrete proposal" which the PHILADELPHIA NORTH AMERICAN (Prog.) believes is "easily capable of fulfillment," and beside which "all previous suggestions that have come within the range of practical consideration" become "feeble, futile and farcical." For the Hughes plan, the DENVER TIMES (Ind.) points out, is not "a historic, haphazard project, born of a great hope" but lacking in definiteness; rather, as the CHICAGO POST (Ind.) sees it, it is "first definite effort to retrace the headlong path of arms followed by civilization ever since its beginnings."

By its "master stroke of statesmanship" as the WICHITA EAGLE (Ind.) calls the Hughes program, the United States has proved that it "had the courage of its convictions," the WASHINGTON POST (Ind.) declares, by giving "the governments something tangible upon which to confer," thus, in "forty minutes of the forenoon," as the BOSTON TRANSCRIPT (Ind. Rep.) puts it, resuming "the moral leadership of the world."

Voltaire, the faith and pragmatism of the American people in general, the HARRISBURG TELEGRAPH (Rep.) feels that "the sincerity of America was made manifest at the outset," and by this proof of its "absolute sincerity," the PITTSBURGH GAZETTE TIMES (Rep.) believes that our attitude "puts the responsibility on others if there is any recession." Further the BOSTON GLOBE (Ind.) remarks, our government has made "an appeal over the heads of the rulers to the ruled—an appeal to public opinion," and "the enthusiastic approval and rejoicing of the world public" over the American initiative the ST. LOUIS POST DISPATCH (Ind.) believes is "the main thing," because "world opinion will in the end control the conference," and if the decision "is left to the people of the world," the "return to peace to their governments" the ASHBY PARK PRESS (Ind. Dem.) entertains "no doubt as to the reply."

The most encouraging aspect, to the BALTIMORE AMERICAN (Rep.) is that "criticisms of Mr. Hughes' proposals" have failed to give birth to a single fundamental objection. Although the keenest analytical minds in the world were looking for a "razor's edge" in fact, the CLEVELAND FLAIN DEALER (Ind.) sees the conference "face to face with the necessity of acting or refusing to act," for "there is no comfortable halfway house, no tenable middle ground." With the "whole problem out in the middle of the stage" the LEXINGTON LEADER (Rep.) believes that "excursions are out of the question," and the ST. PAUL PIONEER PRESS (Ind.) feels that "the participating nations will, in homely language, be obliged either to fish or to cut tail."

It is "virtually impossible," the WHEELING REGISTER (Dem.) thinks, "for England or Japan to refuse to agree with the principal part of the scrapping schedule." Such a proposal "cannot conveniently be rejected by any nation," the FLINT JOURNAL (Ind.) holds, "for the people of the whole world are behind it and with it," and any one unwilling to accept "must tell why," the MUNCIE STAR (Ind. Rep.) warns. Japan especially, the SAVANNAH NEWS (Dem.) believes, "will have to come very near to acceptance of the whole Hughes program" or she will have "to say" in effect, that she means to keep on building. That

Japan would have nothing to gain by such a policy, the PORT WORTH STAR TELEGRAM (Ind. Dem.) suggests is proved by "the alternative which the United States offers—that we shall build the largest navy in the world."

But "if England and Japan are asked to risk much, we agree to risk more," the CHARLESTON (W. Va.) MAIL (Ind. Rep.) points out, if "America pronounces," she also "renounces," for under the "drastic policy in both reduction and limitation" which the United States proposes, the ROCKY MOUNTAIN NEWS (Denver, Ind.) notes that we suffer for the moment at least "the greatest monetary losses." "We would be the 'heaviest losers' from a financial point of view," the ROCHESTER DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE (Rep.) agrees but it is sure that "the American people are going to quibble over the momentary loss of money, thereby the race for naval supremacy can be checked."

"Present material sacrifices must be made for future good," the PITTSBURGH CHRONICLE TELEGRAPH (Rep.) observes, and while armament programs "cannot all be discarded at once without severe dislocations of both capital and labor," still, the NEWARK NEWS (Ind.) remarks, "the peoples of the world cannot return to equality forever simply to prevent these dislocations."

Hughes' "Scapa Flow," as the NORFOLK VIRGINIAN PILOT (Ind. Dem.) christens the plan, while it admittedly involves "a greater sacrifice on the part of the United States than it asks from other Japan or Great Britain," nevertheless "approaches the vastly difficult problem of arranging a true ratio of strength."

For under the plan, the HARRISBURG TELEGRAPH (Rep.) feels that "the sincerity of America was made manifest at the outset," and by this proof of its "absolute sincerity," the PITTSBURGH GAZETTE TIMES (Rep.) believes that our attitude "puts the responsibility on others if there is any recession." SO WEAK SO NERVOUS

How Miserable This Woman Was Until She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Toomsboro, Ga.—"I suffered terribly with backache and headache all the time, was so weak and nervous I didn't know what to do, and could not do my work. My trouble was deficient and irregular periods. I read in the papers what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for others and decided to give it a trial. I got good results from its use so that I am now able to do my work. I recommend your Vegetable Compound to my friends who have troubles similar to mine and you may use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. C. F. PHILLIPS, Toomsboro, Ga.

Weak, nervous women make unhappy homes, their condition irritates both husband and children. It has been said that nine-tenths of the nervous prostration, nervous depression, "the blues," irritability, displacement or derangement of a woman's system. Mrs. Phillips' letter proves that no other remedy is so successful as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

THIN, FLAT HAIR

GROWS LONG, THICK AND ABUNDANT

"Danderine" costs only 35 cents a bottle. One application ends all dandruff, stop itching and falling of hair, and, in a few moments, you have doubled the beauty of your hair. It will appear a mass, so soft, lustrous, and easy to do up. But what will please you most will be after a few weeks use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp.

"Danderine" is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. This delightful, stimulating tonic helps thin, lifeless, faded hair to grow long, thick, heavy and luxuriant.

90-Year Old Twins Are Keeping Folks Guessing

Special to The Post-Crescent.
Leavenworth, Kan. — D'ja ever meet James and Joel Cheatwood, twin-brother farmers of this neck of the woods?
Well, this will introduce them to you—because folks simply can't tell them apart.
James is 90 years old, so's Joel. Joel has a flowing white beard, so's James. Both of 'em part their hair on the left side and flash a pair of blue eyes.
You can't get either one of the brothers to admit that they are old. "I am not what you'd call an old man," says James—or maybe it was Joel. "I was born just a little sooner than younger folks—that's all."
"I can do as much as any of these young sprouts around here," says Joel—or maybe it was James.
It's been high out to 90 years since the brothers settled down to farming, on farms a mile apart, near Leavenworth.
When either one of them makes a trip into town, as far as the townsfolk are concerned, it might be the other. When neighbors see them in their own back yards—well, even then it isn't safe to make a bet, 'cause James often calls on Joel and Joel often calls on James.
Interviewing the twins is a puzzle in itself. Looking directly at one of them, for instance, you ask:
"How did you come to keep so young, James, in spite of your 90 years."
And the other one answers:
"Hard work! That's all there's to it. If I had retired like several of my friends did, I would have been dead years ago."
"Quitting one's life work to spend time at ease kills quickly. The way to live is to keep your interest in your farm, your business or what ever work you are following."
And then the other one, Joel—or maybe it's James—explains:
"Freedom from worry has been my chief aid in reaching a ripe old age. Just act what you want in moderation. Don't read about and think about symptoms of sickness and you will stay well a lot longer."
Joel—or James—believes he and his brother are the oldest twins in the United States. And James—or Joel—adds, "I reckon so."
Both the twins are married. Joel—or maybe it's no, it's Joel—has seven children. James hasn't any.
One of the brothers recently celebrated his sixtieth wedding anniversary. Neighbors aren't just sure which one it was.
Anyway, there isn't any question as to how they feel about how long they are going to live.
For both James and Joel—or Joel and James—reply:
"We'll live until we die, anyway."
And, for that long, it seems that the friends of the twin-brother farmers, won't be able to tell whether Joel is James—or whether James is Joel.

FALL BUSINESS HELPS RAILROADS

By Albert Apple
Special to The Post-Crescent
Chicago.—Fall business has increased railroad freight traffic at an enormous rate, according to the car service division of the American Railway Association.
In the week ended Oct. 15, latest date reported, the number of cars loaded with revenue-producing freight on all the railroads was 906,034. This was the greatest of any week since early November, 1920. It compares with 912,078 cars loaded in the corresponding week of 1919.
Biggest freight gains recently have been seen in the movement of coal. This is customary at this season. Shippers are rushing coal to Lake Erie ports before navigation closes the middle of November.
The increase in freight volume has been going ahead steadily for several months. Fear of a railroad tieup was only partly responsible for October gains.
The number of idle freight cars in good repair on all railroads has fallen below 122,000. This is a drop from about 500,000 good-repair cars idle last April. That was the peak.

PASTOR FIGHTS TAX COLLECTORS

London.—Behind barred wire entanglements and heavily barricaded doors, the Rev. G. H. Borrell, a clergyman, for nine months has been besieged in his home in the heart of London.
Nine stalwart detectives, working in eight-hour shifts of three, day and night, are the besieging force.
Last Christmas the Rev. Borrell refused to pay a tax levy imposed by the Socialist borough council of Islington. Because, he said, he was an opponent of socialism and didn't have enough to meet the levy, anyway.
Unable to seize his property, the council got an order for his arrest. Then the siege began. Since detectives cannot force entry into a house under British law, their only chance is to seize the clergyman when he comes out.
Thus far, it's cost the council $10,000 to maintain the siege. And the "fighting parson's" tax levy only amounted to $200.
The clergyman gets his food and supplies by drawing them up on a rope through the upper window.
He spends his spare time preaching to the detectives through a top story window.

POSTOFFICE WILL HELP FIND MISSING PERSONS

Postmaster General Will H. Hayes has sent bulletins to all postmasters asking them to aid in the location of lost relatives, friends and sweethearts that stand the closest investigation as to the purpose of the request. According to Postmaster Keller the postoffice is not permitted to give out names and addresses to anyone and the new ruling applies only in cases of lost addresses of missing persons.

It is not the intention of the post-office department to interfere in personal matters or to act as collection agencies. Anyone asking help of the postoffice officials must be sincere in their requests.

FRACTURES ARM
Mrs. Jerry Callahan, 434 South River-st., fractured her arm Wednesday when she fell on the sidewalk in front of Downer's pharmacy.

DOES HER HOUSEWORK NOW WITH NO EFFORT

Thankful to Garren's Tonic Because it Brought Her Strength and Energy to Make Her Work a Pleasure

Mrs. Frances Bollen who lives at 741 Sixtieth-ave., in West Allis says the first two doses of Garren's Tonic helped her, which is remarkable for she had tried everything and had reached the stage where she had no faith in anything.
"I suffered terribly from indigestion until I could hardly eat, and what little I ate I had to force. Gas would form on my stomach and bloat me so until I could hardly endure the pain. I had awful dizzy spells and everything would turn black in front of me. I have taken all kinds of medicine without getting relief."

It was with almost indifference that I started on something new, but now I can't sing the praises of Garren's Tonic loud enough for it has given me a brand new stomach and I can eat anything I want without indigestion. All of those gas pains have left me and I can do my housework with ease, as I don't have to sit down and rest every minute.
I will gladly recommend Garren's Tonic to those who are suffering with indigestion for it is the best medicine I have ever heard of and I am thankful for the help it has given me."
Garren's Tonic is sold in Appleton by the Schmitz Bros. Co., in Kaukauna by E. A. Meyer, in Greenville by H. H. Schulze, in Dale by Abende Pharmacy, in Bear Creek by John W. Stattler, in Seymour by S. G. McCord, and by the leading druggists in every city.

THIRD PARTY MAY FOLLOW N. P. FIGHT

Independents Plan Craft Quiz into Affairs of N. P. Men Still in Office

Especially, N. D.—North Dakota's state recall election has dealt the Nonpartisan league a kick and a caress at the same time.

For a Nonpartisan governor, attorney general and commissioner of agriculture were recalled, ousting the league from the executive branch of the government.

But the league's industrial program was unshaken, despite vigorous attempts to nullify measures providing for a state bank, state mills and elevators, rural credits and a state home building association.

And while the league executives were recalled by average pluralities of 4,000, the league's program was upheld by a plurality of 6,000.

Post-election developments are: Nonpartisan league heads predict their organization will come back into power next year, saying the new executives cannot carry out the league program satisfactorily.

Newly elected officials threaten a probe of alleged graft by Nonpartisan league state officials.

Popular dislike for the bitter fight that has raged since the advent of the Nonpartisan league and its opponent, the Independent Voters' association, may lead to the formation of a third party.

This third party will seek to combine the best of the Nonpartisan league and the Independent Voters' association. In the words of its promoters, it will help the people "escape from the clutches of the politicians without strife."

The Nonpartisan league, it is understood, will not contest the recall but will save all its energies for the coming campaign. Plans will be laid at the coming state convention.

But, unofficially, the league says the recall was illegal. It charges that Canadian citizens, minors, dead men and "babes yet unborn" signed the recall petition. It says the recall petition was financed by big grain and banking interests.

The Independent Voters' association denies this and charges it had 80,000 names on its petition and submitted only 74,000. It declares its campaign fund was small and subscribed entirely within the state.

ANNUAL SALE AT HIGH SCHOOL NETS DINNERS FOR 32

More Than $500 Realized From Second Annual Senior Class Auction

Barrels of food whose retail value was approximately $20 each were sold to 32 deserving families on Thursday morning as a result of the "Senior Auction" which took place at the high school Wednesday afternoon. The proceeds from the auction which was almost entirely confined to the sale of 450 pounds of homemade candy amounted to something over $500. What remains from the fund will enable the high school to carry on a program of organized charity during the remainder of the winter.

Bidding on the food was done almost entirely by means of pools, composed of students or faculty banded together with an official bidder for each. Perhaps the most notorious of these pools was that known as the "Stars and Stripes," made up of members of the high school faculty, who, dressed in prison stripes, came to the auction in lock-step formation. They were guarded by a big policeman, decorated with a conspicuous star, who did the bidding for the "jail birds." Other groups worked out clever costumes and decorations.

The material sent to families on Thanksgiving included potatoes, flour, butter, sugar, coffee, meat, a chicken, cranberries, crackers, apples, rice, and other staples. The auction was a very successful event. Although it did not yield as much money as last year, the committee was able to make it go farther because of the somewhat reduced prices of foodstuffs.

OPEN TICKET SALE FOR ROTARY PLAY

High School Students, Boy and Girl Scouts to Cover Entire City

Ticket sale for the Rotary club play, "The Tomorrow's" will be commenced by Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and high school students Monday morning. Anyone wishing to procure tickets may go so far as any of these groups, which have distributed the city and will attempt to solicit every one before the opening of the reservations at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning. The play is to be given at Lawrence Memorial chapel on Thursday, Dec. 1.

The play, given by the Rotary club is only one-third of the program offered for the benefit of the Boy Scouts in Appleton. The Scouts themselves will present "A Night in Camp," as the first part of the program, while the "comedy quartet" led by Dean Carl Waterman, known on the stage as "Judge," will furnish the second number. Members of the Rotary club and their wives compose the cast of the play which carries with it a plea for education.

PLACED ON PAROLE FOR STEALING FROM AUTOS

Earl Stroppe, Lawrence Newland and Theodore Gosse were placed on parole for one year Friday morning after pleading guilty to charges of petit larceny. Lawrence Just About Able To Pay Its Own Way Now, Reports Show

Lawrence Trustees Discuss Plan for Separation of Funds and Employment of New Officer—Gifts for Year Aggregate $10,000

That Lawrence college is just about self-sustaining this year as compared with its deficit of about $17,000 two years ago is the fact shown by the report of James A. Wood, treasurer, submitted to the board of trustees which met Tuesday afternoon. The report shows that the income for the year ending July 31, 1921 was $315,656.50 as compared with the expenditures for the year amounting to $304,111.32, leaving a seeming profit of $11,545.18. The fact that a general educational fund gift and other gifts amounting to $10,350 were made the college last year, indicates that the college is just about breaking even.

Of the income, students in the college of liberal arts pay $84,412.41, the Carnegie Retiring allowance, notes $2,522.53, students in the conservatory, $48,116.33; rent and board at the dormitories, $120,662.11; investments, $49,242.50 and gifts for current expenses $10,350. Expenses in the college include $78,655.19 for salaries of the professors in the college of liberal arts and $26,360.30 in the conservatory of music.

Separation of Funds
Other interesting figures in the report show that it costs $125,030.66 to run the college of liberal arts while the conservatory of music costs $38,144.49. Money spent in keeping up the dormitories and their current expenses amounts to $103,754.37 and administrative and general expenses amount to $19,575.16, while interest is $11,770.39.

The committee on bylaws made an extensive report on proposed changes which it has been considering for some time. One of these is the separation of the endowment fund from other funds in the college with a separate treasurer. Another is the appointment of a business manager or executive secretary of the college. The action taken was to have the bylaws mimeographed and mailed to each of the trustees for study before the next meeting. A long discussion took place in regard to each of these changes.

Changes Suggested

The remainder of the afternoon session was given over to the consideration of a series of more than 20 graphs prepared by Fred Dickerson of Chicago in which he showed graphically the growth of the college as compared with other colleges, the depreciation of the property, the management of the dormitories, a suggested plan of administration for the college which would provide several new executive positions, including the executive secretary, a dean of freshmen, a statistician, purchasing agent and others as used in big industrial plants.

Those who attended the meeting were: Theobald Otgen, Milwaukee; Fred G. Dickerson, Chicago; Rev. Henry Colman, Milwaukee; Lyman J. Nash, Manitowish; J. S. Davis, Milwaukee; W. H. Hatton, New London; L. M. Alexander, Port Edwards; Mrs. Frank Shattuck, Neenah; G. W. Jones, J. A. Wood, J. G. Osebush, J. S. Reeve, H. F. Saecker, Dr. Samuel Plantz, Mrs. Kate Brokaw and Mrs. Nicholas Nicholson. The visiting trustees included the Rev. T. D. Williams, Green Bay; the Rev. Richard Evans, Wausau; the Rev. J. W.

FIVE INJURED AS AUTOMOBILE SKIDS ON SLIPPERY ROAD

Appleton Car Turns Over When it Slides into Curb at Little Chute

Five persons were injured, one seriously Wednesday evening when the car in which they were riding skidded into the curb in the village of Little Chute. Joseph Jones, 723 College-ave., who was driving his own car, was the only member of the party that escaped injury.

The injured are: Carl Tennie, 909 Sixth-st., cut in leg; Mrs. Carl Tennie, injuries to the spine, now under doctor's care; Mrs. Joseph Jones, lacerations of the face, arms and legs; John Rechner, 223 Eighth-st., back bruised; Unidentified woman from Kaukauna, minor injuries. Mr. Rechner refused to divulge the name of the Kaukauna woman.

The party left Appleton Wednesday evening for Kaukauna where the Kaukauna woman was to be taken to her home. Through the mist and the

HOW I STARTLED THE WORLD by MAUD ALLEN

Maud Allen danced before the King and Queen of England. She also danced for Leopold of Belgium. The Rajahs of India were carried away by her art, grace and beauty. She caused a furore in South Africa. Hardened New York gasped over her dances. She has written her own life story at last brushing aside the veil of many mysterious episodes. IT'S GREAT! DON'T MISS IT!

The Girl Who Would Be Queen

THE PLOT

Ex-Queen Zita faced her husband in their villa in Switzerland, where they had taken refuge after the political storm which resulted in Charles' flight from Hungary. "Are you going to allow that upstart plebeian, Horthy, to marry his daughter, Paula, to Archduke Albert and then to place him on the throne of Maria Theresa?" she asked. The former emperor of Austro-Hungary stared into space for a time.

AD MEN URGED TO SELL APPLETON TO ITS OWN PEOPLE

J. W. Fiske Speaks at Advertising Club Banquet—Plan
Advertising Course

Forty members of Appleton Advertising club and guests from Oshkosh and Neenah heard an interesting address by James W. Fiske, of the Schuster stores, Milwaukee, following a banquet at which Mr. Fiske was the guest of the club in the French room of the Sherman house Wednesday evening. It was announced following the dinner that the club would sponsor an advertising course at the vocational school, starting immediately after the first of the year and continuing for 16 weeks. Textbooks will be provided. H. C. Tunison of the Peabody-Peabody Co. will be in charge.

It is probable that advertising clubs will be organized in Oshkosh and Green Bay by the Appleton association. Representatives from Oshkosh asked that a club be formed in that city.

Mr. Fiske congratulated the city on having a well organized and live advertising club and advised the club to join in promotion of every worthwhile project. He commented favorably on the club's plan to advertise the valley and the city and urged the members to sell the community to those who live here.

Part of his brief talk was devoted to a discussion of advertising. He gave four general rules for measuring advertising value. They are: 1. The advertisement must be seen. It must be read. It must be understood, and it must appeal to the credulity of the reader. Unless advertising has all these virtues it is not successful, Mr.
Fiske said.

MORE HUNTERS THAN DEER IN NORTH WOODS

Dr. H. E. Ellsworth returned empty handed from Florence, where he spent several days deer hunting.
It was his thirty-second trip in thirty-five years and one of the very few times he did not bring home his quota. "There were 35 hunters that I know of in my immediate vicinity," said Dr. Ellsworth, "who secured only three bucks. Something like 11 doe and fawns were killed, however."
Dr. Ellsworth is satisfied the present one-buck law is a failure and said a law prohibiting hunting every other year would work out more successfully.

SEEK MISSING GIRL WITH STAGE AMBITIONS

Milwaukee — Norma Fant, 16, pretty Milwaukee girl, left home and friends to realize her ambitions of going on the stage.

Several weeks ago, Norma, after going out for the evening failed to return. Her parents knowing of the theatrical ambitions immediately notified the police, who instituted a search in every city in which there is a theatrical booking agency but failed to locate her.

night the "Up In The Clouds" company departed and it was thought she might have gone with them.

A report Friday from the Columbus, Ohio, police where the company is now playing, stated the girl was not known by members of the company.

Norma assumed her stage name
"Betty Marshall" upon leaving.

EVIDENCE TOO STRONG FOR LANDRU'S NERVES

By United Press Leased-Wire
Versailles—Stunned by the sudden bolt of strong prosecuting evidence, Henri Landru, the "bluebeard" of Gambais, hunched down, silent in his seat in court here Friday and for the first time since the opening of the trial had no cross-fire to counter the claims of the prosecution.

Doctor Gauvez, an expert, testified that the charred bones found in the ash heap at Landru's Gambais villa were those of humans.

"The teeth from three of the bodies indicated the bodies were burned," Dr. Gauvez declared. "There also were some domestic animal bones found in the same pile."

*The key to success is work—
There is no substitute for it!*

In order to do your best work, you must be healthy. You must sleep soundly at night, your nerves must be strong, steady and under perfect control.

If you are accustomed to drinking tea or coffee with your meals or between meals, you may be loading yourself with a very great handicap. Your nervous system may be stimulated beyond what is natural for you.

For tea and coffee contain thein and caffeine. These are drugs, as any doctor can tell you. They are known to irritate the nervous system by their action and to cause restlessness and insomnia, which prevent the proper recuperation of the vital forces.

If you want to be at your best, capable of doing the very best work that lies in you, why not stop drinking tea and coffee? Drink Postum, the rich, satisfying beverage made from scientifically roasted cereals.

Postum contains absolutely no drugs of any kind, but in flavor tastes much like rich coffee. It helps nerve and brain structure by letting you get sound restful sleep.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

Ask your grocer for Postum. Sold everywhere.

DEATHS

MRS. WILLIAM HORN
Mrs. William Horn, 430 Walter-avo, died at 120 Wednesday evening following an operation. She is survived by her husband, parents, Mr.
and Mrs. Fred Noth, six sisters, three brothers and three grandchildren. Mrs. Horn was born in Germany Feb. 12, 1876, and came to this country at the age of seven years.
The funeral will be held from the Zion Lutheran church at 230 Saturday afternoon.

MRS. FRED GOETZ
Mrs. Fred Goetz, formerly of Appleton, died at her home at Cadott, Wis., Saturday, Nov. 19, and was buried Wednesday, Nov. 23. She is survived by her husband and daughter. Among the relatives who attended the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Voelck.

HENRY LEPLA
Henry Lepla, 75, well known town of Dale farmer, died at his home on Wednesday following an operation.
Funeral services will be held at 1:30
Saturday afternoon at the late residence and at 2 o'clock at the Roformed church at Dale. Burial will be made in the Dale cemetery.

Mr. Lepla was born in Rheln Pfalz, Germany, in 1846, and came to America 25 years later. He learned the wagonmaker trade in Germany but left that work when he was 21 years of age. He had served nearly three years when the Franco-German war broke out and he continued in the service. He was in the pioneer department and spent several months before Paris in the memorable siege of that city doing engineering work.

Shortly after the close of the war
Mr. Lepla, with his fiancée, Miss Julia Shoemaker, embarked for America, going to his brother, John Lepla, in the town of Dale, where the young couple was married. He later purchased his brother's farm and made it his home until he retired about 20 years ago and moved to the village of Dale where he had since resided.

The decedent is survived by his widow, three sons, Daniel, Appleton;
John and Wallie, Dale.

MERCHANT MUST SATISFY PUBLIC TO BE A SUCCESS

J. W. Fiske Tells Salesmanship Class of Problems Confronting Retailers

"Selling the institution and its courteous service to the public is the biggest problem facing the retailer," James W. Fiske said in his lecture at the vocational school Wednesday evening. "The people who spend money like to have courtesy, hospitable recognition and prompt service and they always expect it. If the buying public does not have faith in the business house with which it does business it soon will go elsewhere and get what it demands."

Mr. Fiske addressed the salesmanship class which is being held at the vocational school. About 150 persons heard the address. Mr. Fiske is connected with the Schuster stores in Milwaukee. He was the guest of Appleton Advertising club at dinner at 6 o'clock.

Mr. Fiske pointed out that there is more to retailing than any one person may learn but if the different phases of the work are reduced to fundamentals it becomes simple. Retailers, he said, save time, money and expense for customers and these are the reasons for their existence. High class styles, complete assortments, price dependability and quality are the things that draw customers and make them satisfied.

Miss Home Trade

"Many retailers try to cover too much territory to draw trade from and very often overlook the best business right at their doors. Merchants are in business to sell goods and must satisfy the clientele and do so on efficient methods. In large cities some stores specialize in certain articles and by so doing get the best trade for their goods."

According to Mr. Fiske it is just as necessary for the owner of the establishment to draw a salary as it is for the clerks. This should be added to the regular expenses account, as well as the rent of the buildings that house the business. These should be taken into consideration because the expenses regulate the price charged and the profits realized.

"Sales should be planned on a basis of earning power and expenditures for the various commodities. Money is spent for different things in each territory," he told the audience. "One should plan sales in accordance with the months. Buy the articles that can be sold on a good business scale, for a given month thereby turning over stocks more readily and also saving money on discounts. This is called a stock control system and in doing that the retailer is not taking the big chances that are often taken."

A REAL INVESTMENT

Advertising is considered by most merchants as an expense but it is really an investment and the returns on the proper kind and amount of publicity and advertising are great. While the results are not often shown at the start of the advertising campaign it is all the while building up a business that will establish itself in the community as a solid institution. Good window displays sell goods without salesmen and all displays should carry the element of salability. People like to sell merchandise to themselves and appealing displays do this. Suggestive selling, Mr. Fiske said, sells more goods than any other method.

In summing up his talk on salesmanship and retailing Mr. Fiske said, "Not until conditions are such that a business goes straight ahead in one compact unit and all those working for the organization pushing for the same goal can any business flourish."

Feed Alcohol To Your Car For Winter Driving

Cost of Winter Driving Reduced When Alcohol Prices Drop

Alcohol prices have dropped! This announcement, however, pertains only to the brand that is put into automobile radiators as a non-freezing solution. Some satisfaction may be gained by the imbibing motorist that he may buy a drink for the radiator of his car considerably cheaper than to quench his thirst. Denatured alcohol has proved to be one of the best nonfreezing solutions on the market and the only one that will not cause leaks in the radiator. At the present time the best solution of denatured alcohol is the one known as formula number 6. Some of the alcohol solutions contain small parts of glycerine which counteracts evaporation.

During the first part of the winter season of 1920 denatured alcohol sold at $1.50 per gallon. A noticeable drop in price was made during the winter and when spring arrived the alcohol solutions were retailing for $1 per gallon.

According to present prices quoted at the hardware stores and filling stations in the city, denatured alcohol may be secured in small quantities for 85 cents per gallon or 15 cents lower than the lowest price last year. Practically all of the denatured alcohol handled by local dealers is between 188 and 190 proof. This solution has plenty of "kick" to prevent freezing. Radiators that freeze after alcohol has been added to the water do so because the mixture is not strong enough," said John Wollenberg of the Wollenberg Auto Radiator Works. "The proper mixture for the most severe winter months is one half water to one half of alcohol. As the radiator becomes empty alcohol and not water should be added. Very little water evaporates from the radiator in the winter months and the decrease in the amount of the solution is due to loss of alcohol which evaporates readily when heated. Therefore to keep the solution at the proper strength alcohol should be added. If the following table is followed radiators will not freeze:

Parts of Alc. to one gal. of water,	Freezing temp. of mixture
1	23 degrees above zero
2	12 degrees above zero
3	3 degrees above zero
4	8 degrees below zero
5	18 degrees below zero
6	25 degrees below zero
7	30 degrees below zero
8	35 degrees below zero

PORTUGAL HAS ITS PACIFIC PROBLEM

Will Jealously Guard Macao, a Chinese Area, at Arms Conference

Washington—The "Pacific inter-ests" which Portugal will jealously guard at the disarmament conference are one and one-half miles long and one mile wide.

Macao, a Portuguese possession since 1557, is a peninsula jutting out from the island of Hung Shung on the Chinese coast. It has a population of 78,627—74,568 Chinese, 3,398 Portuguese and 151 others gathered from all quarters of the globe.

Originally Macao was the most important trading port in the eastern Pacific. But when England opened up Hong Kong, Macao's importance dwindled.

Today it's an Asiatic Monte Carlo. Dwellers of the hot cities on the Chinese coast come there in summer both because of the sea breezes and a special kind of booze Macao manufactures.

Gamblers, swindlers and thugs from every part of the Orient maintain their headquarters in Macao.

For a long time the Portuguese government paid the Chinese government $350 a year for a lease on Macao. The Portugal decided that was excessive and the rent collectors haven't been able to get a penny since 1849.

In the first half of the last century Macao's chief industry was exporting Chinese coolies who were sold into virtual slavery. Then the Portuguese government put a stop to that and today the chief industry is smuggling.

PRINCESS HERE ON VISIT

"What do you think of the situation in the Balkans?" the inquiring reporter asked Princess Elisabeta as she arrived in America. "Blah-blah," she answered. Princess Elisabeta, you see, can't talk much yet. That's her mother, Princess Elisabeta of Rumania, holding her up for a view of the Statue of Liberty.

Prisoners Had Real Reason To Be Thankful

County "guests" who were confined to the county jail for various reasons did not feel the least bit slighted because of the splendid array of feasts that graced all tables at Thanksgiving. Sheriff Schwartz said Thanksgiving day was the same the "guests" had. On the menu for the festival were consommé, pickles, olives, choice young chicken, mashed potatoes, cranberry sauce, fruit, pumpkin pie, and many other dainties fit for a king.

Sheriff Schwartz further said that the prisoners in his charge always get the same foods that he eats.

THE STAGE

FISKE O'HARA

There is a certain class of plays, the atmosphere of which is so clean, the humor so innocent, yet as irresistible, that time has no power to destroy their lasting qualities. In this class is "The Happy Cavalier," in which the smiling Fiske O'Hara, everybody's favorite actor-singer, returns to the Appleton Theatre, Wednesday, November 30, under the direction of Augustus Pitou, Inc. "The Happy Cavalier" is in four acts, described as a romantic comedy and written by Anna Nichols. It is said to be a story possessing a depth

Painful Rheumatic Swellings Disappear

Discoverer T. J. Schlitz Bros. Co., Voigt's Drug Store, Union Pharmacy and All Good Druggists Not to Take a Cent of Anyone's Money Unless Allenhu Completely Banishes All Rheumatic Pains and Twinges.

Mr. James H. Allen suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work.

He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

He freely gave his discovery to others who took it with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers. Schlitz Bros. Drug Co., Voigt's Drug Store and Union Pharmacy have been appointed agents for Allenhu in this vicinity with the understanding that they will freely return the purchase money on the first two bottles to all who state they received no benefit.

IF YOUR EARS RING WITH HEAD NOISES

If you have roaring, buzzing noises in your ears, are getting hard of hearing and fear Catarrh of the Ears, go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmitin double strength, and add to it 1/4 pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dripping into the throat. It is easy to prevent, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal trouble of the ears, is hard of hearing or has head noises should give this prescription a trial.

BANK GIVES PRIZES TO BOOST THRIFT

The Lincoln School Savings bank is offering one phonograph record to the grade that makes the largest number of individual deposits in the school bank up to Wednesday, Jan. 18, 1922, which is the end of Thrift week. The purpose of the contest is to get the pupils to form a habit of saving regularly and to encourage thrift.

The school bank does not aim to take the place of the regular savings banks of the city which invite savings of a dollar or more while the school invites savings of a dollar or less. The purpose is to help the pupil to save his pennies until he has a dollar to add to his account in the city bank. This school bank is of use to two classes of children; those who have not started an account in some bank and those who ought to save regularly in small accounts in order to add to their accounts in the city banks.

High School Has Orchestra Of Real Worth

Students of the high school were given a Thanksgiving treat Wednesday morning when the school orchestra gave its second concert in the assembly room. The program included popular and classical music, marches and overtures. Several fox trots were introduced as feature numbers.

This is the first orchestra of its kind the high school ever has had and it is possible that a student band might be organized. The first concert was given at the Roosevelt memorial services.

Ten members of the orchestra included: First violins, Wallace Marshall, Burton Munser, Oscar Hoh; second violin, Carl Engler; piano, Ralph Hoh; trombone, Merrill Schell; cornet, Percy Engler; saxophone, Clinton Grant; clarinet, LaValin Maesch; drums and

A Continuous Flow of Fresh Warm Air in Your Car
The radiator in the Temme Heater is provided with many fins to insure a maximum radiation of heat. Then, to prevent this radiation from having a purely local effect, an air circulation feature has been devised that makes the heat fill the car. The air circulation feature is merely an asbestos wall that leaves a cool air space between the radiator coils and the housing. In addition to circulating the heat this wall prevents the housing or the floor plate from becoming overheated. The Temme Heater gives forth an abundance of heat and yet a lap robe laying on the floor plate will not even become scorched.

VERMONT MAN IS OLDEST SENATOR

Washington — Senator Carroll Smalley Page of Vermont is the oldest man in the senate.

Page will retire March 3, 1923, when his present term expires. He'll be 81 years old and will have rounded out his fifty-fourth year in public office. In the senate, Page is chairman of the naval affairs committee. But just to fill in his odd moments he's— President of two Vermont banks, Treasurer of a manufacturing corporation, Director of a bank, Director of a railway, Head of a raw calfskin business. But, despite all that, the "daddy of the senate" finds time to walk two miles a day and take an hour's auto ride every evening. That's what keeps him fit, he says. "I feel as well today as I ever did," he says. "But I think when a man's been on the job 54 years, it's time for someone to take him by the coat tails and tell him to let someone else have a chance." "How do I keep up? First, good ancestry—a sound natural constitution. Then, abstinence from tobacco and liquor. I'm a teetotaler, you know, but not a fanatic."

"I've been happy in public office, but it's a work of charity. If I'd been in private life I'd have made lots more money and worked less." Page started his public career in 1869 when he was elected to the Vermont House of Representatives. In 1908 he was elected United States Senator to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Redfield Proctor. In 1911 he was re-elected for a full term and in 1917 again re-elected.

Rendering a Positive Service

The Daily News, Minneapolis, Minnesota, prints
the following editorial in its issue of November 14:

When Magnitude Discards Mystery

Frankness is being better recognized a big need in all human relations, including business.

The bigger the business, the greater the need for frankness.

It wasn't always so; in fact, until only a few years ago, the reverse was true so far as actual practice was concerned and magnitude paid a penalty for the mystery in which it chose to cloak itself.

As one of the biggest of the big industrial and commercial organizations, the Standard Oil Co. used to exercise its full appropriate share of mystery. That this policy has been changed—deliberately and conspicuously—is a development that is as radical as it is interesting to students of publicity.

For three years, Standard Oil has been out of its shell telling the public exactly how it was doing things, why it was doing things and what it was driving at. It has made large use of advertising space in newspapers without regard to their attitude toward itself. It has conspicuously evidenced its desire to talk to the people and to put out its products for a price that included good will.

Today, instead of merely making its products available to those who MUST buy, Standard Oil is employing extensive publicity to make people WANT to buy. There is a very great difference, and about the difference between the extension of tribute in one case and the rendering of positive service in the other.

Entirely aside from commercial considerations, a policy of frankness and service will tend to iron out some disagreeable wrinkles in the things that are. And the benefits will go to both sides of the equation.

To render a positive service is not alone the desire of those responsible for the management of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana). It is a well-formed, clearly-understood determination.

This determination to render a positive service is expressed in the multitude of products manufactured by this Company from crude petroleum.
The housewife, the motorist, the farmer, the physician, the fabricator of raw materials, almost every special branch of human endeavor, has been considered and that part of the petroleum which will render to each the greatest service, has been segregated and made instantly available.

This is the method chosen by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) to make tangible the positive service it is endeavoring to render.

The campaign of advertising which is being carried on has as its object a frank discussion of the ways and means used by the Company in delivering this service, a discussion which tells what it is doing and how it is doing it, and why.

That there is a better understanding of the motives of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) and a feeling of increasing confidence in its integrity and straightforward frankness is indicated by the number of favorable comments which the campaign has elicited from the editorial departments of newspapers, big and little, throughout the eleven states served.

Justice, equity, frankness, a basic desire to render a positive service, and a determination to take all of the people into its confidence are the underlying principles governing this organization.

ADOPT SHORT WORK WEEK FOR RAILMEN

Railroad Shops Operate Five Days a Week—Mill Employees Injured

Kaukauna.—When the Kaukauna railroad shops closed down Wednesday evening for Thanksgiving, work was suspended until Monday morning. The shops do not operate on Saturday and rather than call the men in for one day, the plant was closed for the remainder of the week. The plan of working five days a week has just been inaugurated following a vote of the workmen, who were given the alternative of cutting the number of working days or accepting a 25 per cent cut in the working force. A telegram last week from the superintendent of motive power in Chicago stated that a reduction in force was necessary immediately. A second telegram followed which presented the plan of five working days. At a meeting of the men in the auditorium, the latter plan was accepted, thus keeping the men now employed busy at least part of the time.

Frank Vander Valden of Kimberly, suffered an injury to his foot Wednesday morning in Union Bag mill while he was engaged in fitting pipes in the heater room. He stepped back on a nail which protruded from a board. The nail entered the arch of his foot and made a hole about an inch and a half deep.

COUNTY C. E. RALLY

Nearly all of the members of the two Christian Endeavor societies in this city will be present at the annual county rally of the society Sunday afternoon in Appleton. The Reformed church society numbers 45 members but the south congregational Endeavor is smaller. The first meeting is to be held at 4 o'clock in Memorial Presbyterian church. Evening meetings will be held in First congregational church.

A number of speakers have been secured for each meeting. There will be several special musical numbers. The Rev. Mawaldt of the Moravian church of Green Bay, will be the principal speaker.

MEMORABLES SCHOOL SPIRIT

Kaukauna high school will observe "better school spirit week" beginning Monday morning. The junior class has charge of the program, yells, songs and posters for the first day. At a meeting Wednesday the following committee was appointed: Milton Metz, Enola Van Leishout, Regina Callahan, Mildred Kern, Helen Guller, Ann Bayreton, Harold Dorus, Howard Wendt, Evelyn Jahress, E. O. Ott. Each class and the faculty will take charge of one day of the week. A special stunt will be put on by the class in charge each day. Prizes will be awarded for the best songs, yells and slogans.

ANTE CLUB MEETING

The Ante club met Thursday afternoon at the home of Miss Sybil Griffith. The time was spent in social entertainment after which a Thanksgiving dinner was served.

LUNCH FOR STUDENTS

When the cold wind blows and it snows, it is almost too chilly for students to travel the long bridge to the south side for their lunch at noon. In order to make life easier for the high school people the domestic science classes have begun to serve lunch in the basement. Students are able to get a meal with just the right amount of each food for what it costs to prepare it. The plan has been tried each winter for several years and has proven very successful. Lists naming the food to be served the day following are placed on the bulletin boards and the students check each article they desire.

An Exciting Story of a Girl Who Could Not Find Excitement
By FLORENCE SEYLER THOMPSON

Rose had come a long way—from her unromantic tanberry town—to marry her old-time western sweetheart. She didn't know how he had worked for her, that he had accumulated "oodles" of money to make her happy.

The most spectacular cowboy wedding ever held startled busy Chicago. And she was the center of it all. What a surprise to her!

Out of the Game by Jack Lait

IN the Tony Pastor days, Harrigan and Hart were wont to wring a laugh on a reference to "closing up Central Park." It waited for future generations to make it famous. For now, they officially throw a deadline around the central playground of Manhattan at midnight. Several reasons have been publicly advanced, and a few private opinions have been quietly expressed regarding the reasons therefor.

Central Park was the first institution in America to post a sign "Keep Off the Grass." Since the poor tenement tenants go to a park principally to enjoy the grass, the men who authored that sign had a weird touch for paradox. But the idea grew and prospered until new generations had no idea of going on the sacred grass in the first place, which annoyed the custodians, because it voided a prohibition. Nothing irritates a prohibitioner more raspingly than to efface anything that he wants to prohibit.

And so it came about that in the City of Grit and Graft on the Hudson, the keepers of the park, by virtue of the authority in them vested, decided to take in Central Park at night for fear that some hopeless hobo or some homeless homo might stop there to rest, and no sparrow cop handy to hotfoot him into a proper understanding that this is the land of the free.

The tramp had gone into decadence for several years. The work-or-fight policy during the war had left him only the alternative between two evils, and so expunged him by absorption. Then came the post-bellum prosperity which made the 'bos so lonesome that they drifted into mild employment in sheer ennui. But along came the good old days of jitney coffee, attentive hotel clerks and papyrus peace, and the old birds came home to roost, returning to the park benches and to the open road to beat the income tax.

A misunderstood lot, these scientific loafers. A British poet once sat in a high window of the Plaza hotel, looking down into Central Park, and he called to his phlegmatic amanuensis and dictated a poem that rhymed and scanned, deploring that in this whole panorama of beautiful nature the only discordant item was the human prop. Something seems to whisper that Oliver Wakefield, who wrote about the Vicar of Goldsmith, beat the Britisher to it by observing that every prospect pleased him and only man was gumming up the picture.

Omaha Slim, the ace of tramps, later read this high-toned plagiarism on the torn page of a newspaper which had bought it because the versifier wasn't an American. He read it twice, and then he drawled to Luke the Dude:

"This here bird ain't no poet."

"It's pretty nifty langwidge," defended Luke, biting the fringe off his cuff.

"Langwidge or no langwidge," insisted Slim, "he ain't no poet. Poets don't sit in no Plaza an' look down on Centrill Park—poets sits in Centrill Park an' looks up at the Plaza."

Thus it came about that Matt Maley, having turned hobo, in time turned poet. The first requirement of a poet, as any policeman will tell you, is long hair. Matt hadn't had a hair-cut in weeks. Poe had a raven; Matt had only a dog. The raven, Poe said, had come out of nowhere and seemed booked for ever more. Matt's dog had come from everywhere and stuck on like a rent collector. Otherwise Matt was just like Poe—seedy, down and out. Down and out and up and out—because he had no place where he could go in, up because he hadn't yet acclimated himself to sleeping on green benches.

Matt was under cover, for he was in the park after curfew. He knew that if a harness bull was as awake as he was, he would probably sleep it off on Blackwell's Island. One island looked about the same to him as the other. He did prefer his liberty, but he really had no immediate or burning use for it, so he left fate to manage his affairs, as is the way of poets; except those who write titles for the comical movies.

As he sat on the bench, which he had selected because it was well hidden from the main walks, he heard footsteps. Matt had been a tramp for months, so he had learned enough to know that the foot that he heard was not official. It lacked the volume, it lacked the authority, it lacked the scrape and drag. It tapped lightly and faintly. It sounded as though it might be that of a girl, which seemed absurd at that hour in that spot. Matt turned, and there was the girl.

Matt sprang back, startled. The girl didn't. "Hello," she said. "You're going to get a ride." "You—you aren't a lady cop, are you?" he asked. "I'm neither," she answered. "I used to be a chorus girl. But this is a hard year. All the troupes are closin'. I've reported, tried out, rehearsed, waited, everything but worked—you know, in show business; you're not 'working' unless you're gettin' paid. Rehearsin' and all the no-dough stuff isn't workin'; that's layin' off. I haven't worked in the financial sense of the word for months."

"Gee," said Matt. "I don't wanna get fresh, but from what I've seen of musical shows, you ought to not have much trouble getting a job."

"Thanks. But there are thousands. Very few shows goin' out, an' plenty comin' in, even as early as this in the season. The cabaret revues are a bust because where they don't take a chance with hootch nothin' draws 'em in, and where they boot-leg they don't need any other attractions. Vaudeville has cut the girl acts because of the high price of railroadin', an' burlesque says I'm not the type."

"Not rough enough. I've tried, but it don't get over. Not that I'm too refined, but I don't look unclassy enough. I am—say, nobody was born on the East Side any better than I was, or any further East; I used to throw my rattle in the river out of my high-chair. But, because my father was a teamster and because my mother was a label-paster, I suppose, I have to have the rotten luck to turn out lookin' like a duchess or something—an' burly-que bars me."

"That about puts you out of the game," sighed Matt. "Out of the game is right," laughed she. "To the bench then," ruled Matt. "Indefinitely s'spended."

"Yes—but for no good reason," she protested.

"That's what they all says when they're ordered to the bench. But the umpire's say-so goes, kid."

"I guess it does," she admitted. And she sat down, placing beside her a clumsy package which she had been carrying.

"I'm benched, too," volunteered Matt.

"And if the ump with the blue jacket catches you, he'll order you to the big clubhouse."

"Ne an' you both, girlie."

"Ugh!" exclaimed the girl. "I'd hate that. I'm a glutton for takin' punishment, but I might lose my sense of humor if they slipped me the home, or even the night court."

"I've never made the grill-work, myself," lied Matt. "I've only kipped out less'n a week, though I been out o' work about all Summer. My union struck, an' it isn't settled yet."

"Not enough pay?"

"Oh, great pay—a dollar an hour. We struck for shorter hours."

"I don't get it. If you got paid by the hour, what did you want less hours for?"

"Not less hours—shorter hours."

"Well, you got 'em."

"I got 'em—an' I got 'em good. But I ain't kickin'—I ett yesterday."

"I'm all right, too. I'm gonna eat to-morrow."

"Job in sight?"

"No—a John."

"What's a John?"

"A chorus girl chaser. I've stepped into a flock of 'em. This one is out o' town to-night, but he'll be back to-morrow. I got a date with him."

"Well, then your troubles'll be over."

"Maybe. I might make a touch. Johns is touchable, but Johns is touchy. It takes a lot o' salve, sometimes, to make 'em let loose a dime. They'll sop you with my ashine at twenty smacks a quart when what you want is but a milk, and they'll slip you silk hose when what you need is Jannel underwear. They never get sore if you ask 'em for a milk stole, but if you come 'em for doughnut money, they think the 're being took."

"Yes. But when a girl is down as deep as 'ou are—no place to sleep."

"That's the worst time. They either throw all law an' order to the whistling winds because they think you're too up against it to fight, or else they pass you up cold because everybody hates a loser; or they think if you nicks 'em once you'll be on their hands for life."

"Can't you tell him you just need a few dollars—a short-time touch?"

"Guess I'll have to. I hate it, but, holy mackerel—this sleepin' in parks is pushin' a lady's dignity too far, don't you think?"

"Plenty. Still, everybody horrors. The big banks is in that "I don't mind, mind you. But it's a bit of a nuisance opening up the bundle."

"What's the odds? You got nothin' to do."

"Oh, all right," she yielded, and she began to undo the string. She drew the parcel over so that she was between it and the stranger, hiding the things it contained. Then she fished up a half-dozen pictures and handed them across to Matt. He turned so that the moonlight would hit them and looked them over, one by one, each gravely and studiously.

business, all the c'mercial houses floats paper, this whole nation is made up o' bunk an' borrow. Say—the United States is got enough billions comin' to it out o' what it lent a lot o' busted tramp nations in Eurup to buy Africa. An' the United States owes as much again itself. It's a wheel that spins an' never stops—this here borrowin', an' lendin', an' askin', an' slippin', an' promisin', an' dodgin', an' waitin', an' gimmelin'."

"Well—if nations can do it, and banks and millionaires and stores, I s'pose I shouldn't be so squeamish over it."

"Certainly not."

"But I hate to. It seems to me that the most dangerous thing a girl can get into is money affairs. As long as a girl don't owe, she can be pretty independent, even up to bein' thrun out of her room after she's sold everything she's got, includin' the trunk. I hated to let that trunk go. A trunk is security, even if it's empty—it looks security. You can get in almost anywhere with a trunk. But—how do you get out with it, that's the question. If I had the trunk I could register in a hotel an' they wouldn't bother me for a week, anyway. And in that time I might get some work."

"Yes. You couldn't get much credit on that bundle. A bundle is a billboard o' poverty the same way as a trunk or even a suitcase looks like it runs 'have somethin' in it that might stand for a hock."

"I'm afraid this bundle wouldn't get me past much, open or shut. It's got a few night things in it, a comb an' brush, my makeup box an' my photos."

"Sure. I'd die before I'd give up my photos. They're in tight an' in short dresses, mostly."

"Oh, you like yourself that way?"

"No. It means nothing in my life. I been looked at until it ain't no shock—but that's on the stage, see?"

"See what?"

"If I'm to get work I got to show what I can do. What a chorus girl does is look good without much on. Well, the photos show that. So when I go to a director to ask for a job I show him the photos."

Matt said nothing for a few seconds.

"What you thinkin' about?" she asked.

"Hm. I—what? Oh—thinkin'! Yes. I was thinkin' I'd—would you let me see them photos?"

"I would. But why? What do you want to see 'em for?"

"Oh, just for no good reason."

"Well?" she asked. "What's the verdict?"

"Yes."

"Yes, what?"

"Security o. k. Board o' d'ectors votes that a loan can be advanced on the paper in hand."

"What are you ravin' about?"

"Sn. What's no way to address the president of a big bankin' institution?"

The girl half rose, a bit alarmed.

"You ain't by any chance cookoo, are you?" she inquired.

"By no chance in the world. I'm very sane an' sensible. That's why, bein' a c'servative financier, I demanded the dockyments in order to look into the macher o' the security."

"What security? For what?"

"For a touch."

"Is that any o' your business, p'tic'larly?"

"By all means. Now, listen here. I got a dark deep secret. Don't fall offen the bench—I got a buck."

"You have a—a buck?"

"Yes, ma'am. One fed'ral reserve green paper smacker—the David Higgins—the case ace."

"Then why camp out all night?"

"'Cause I'm a thrifty party who hates to go broke. I'm young, an' if I miss a few meals an' take the ozone at night, I'm still there one clam strong in case of emergency. Besides, they wouldn't let me into no first class hotels with my dog."

"That's pretty game. But, who are you kiddin' holdin' out on yourself that way?"

"No. I knew, somehow, that lonely rebel was for some good purpose, better'n buyin' coffee an' cakes, better'n a couple o' nights in a flophouse."

"That's enough o' that. I couldn't—"

"That's enough o' that. Now, c'nsiderin' the time an' place an' the circumstances, I been pretty polite to you. But don't crowd me, or I'm liable to forget that I'm a banker an' a gentleman, an' that you're a lady, an' wallop you right on the wrist. You're gonna take this here bean, an' you're gonna beat it out o' this park, an' you're gonna buy yourself a decent an' indoors place to sleep."

"But why? Why should you give me your last cent, which you've saved by starvin' an' vaggin' in a park? No, I won't—"

"You will. Now, lemme explain. You ain't a tramp or a cadger, you're a workin' woman—a business woman—your business is chorusin', an' it's a regular, recognized business which you've followed reg'lar as long as c'mercial conditions was good. Now there's a slump.

"Any bank is or ought to be willin' to tide a legitimit business over a dull period. So I asks to see the security, which is entirely satisfactory. I'm convinced from it you can get contracts an' proceed with your business as soon as normally comes back. Now, you grab this here United States coupon, an' I'll escort you in state with my near-ai'dule to one entrance I know in this park where there ain't no fussy copper, an' you go on an' get yourself a flock o' snooze. Come on."

With one hand he pressed a limp and tightly folded dollar into her hand. With the other he took her by the arm.

"Wrap up the bundle. An' you can hold the security in escrow—all excep' this here pickcher in street clo's. I'll hold that for ransom in my steel vaults."

And he rolled it tenderly and slid it into the turnup of his sweater.

They started—the man, the girl and the dog. He took her to the exit.

"How can I ever pay you back?" she asked.

"I'll tell you, girlie. If you can work the John for a reg'lar touch without bein' ashamed to look your conscience in the face, or if you land some work—then forget it. If you don't—well, come to my office."

"Your office?"

"Sure. Over there on that bench. Bankin' hours from 11 p. m. to 7 a. m. I may not be able to lend you no more millions, but I'll give you somethin' no other banker on earth 'll give you—sympathy."

"I—I don't know whether to say I hope we'll meet again—under these conditions—or not."

"I hope not," he choked. "That is, I—what I mean is—good night, girlie. Take care o' yourself."

And he walked back into the dark of the park. And the dog followed. And the girl walked quickly down Fifth avenue, the avenue of millionaires, and as she looked up at their forbidding, inhospitable mansions, a tear ran down the side of her pert nose.

CLEVELAND OUSTS POLITICS; VOTES FOR CITY MANAGER

City Government Experts Have Eyes on Largest Commonwealth to Use Plan

(Special to Post-Crescent)
Cleveland—Eyes of experts in city government throughout the nation today are fixed on Cleveland, the largest city which thus far has ousted the old type of municipal government and adopted the new city manager plan. Cleveland is the nation's fifth city. It has a population of 1,000,000. In the recent city election a charter amendment, providing for a city manager after 1924 and for proportionate representation, won by 19,355 votes. Under the new plan the city's chief executive will be picked by the city council and not elected by vote. The council may give the job to a man in any part of the country. And it may pay him a salary equal to his ability. The city manager will hold office until he dies, resigns or is removed by the council.

Cleveland's new charter amendments stringently forbid political activity by city executives and employees. They cannot pay an assessment for political purposes, be candidates for an elective office, hold office in a political campaign.

Adherents of the manager plan believe it will bring these advantages to Cleveland:

ONE—Politics in the executive side of city government will end, since the manager will have little temptation to play politics.

TWO—The political boss will no longer hold power, since candidates to the city council will have to be elected on real issues rather than because of membership in a certain party.

Outside of Cleveland the operation of the plan will be watched with interest as an experiment toward finding a cure for sick municipal government.

RENTS IN U. S. ARE STILL CLIMBING

By Harry Hunt
(Special to Post-Crescent)

Washington—Home rentals in the United States are still on the increase. This despite definite reductions in the cost of labor, materials, fuel and other elements entering into the construction or maintenance of rental properties.

In a detailed survey of rental rates and other chief factors in the average man's family budget, covering 32 cities, government investigators find that home rents today average about 9 per cent higher than on Dec. 1, 1920, and 60 per cent higher than in 1913.

Only in three cities—Detroit, Mobile and Seattle—have rents declined from the level of a year ago. The decrease in each of these cities was small. In the case of Detroit, where rents had increased 108 per cent during the war, they fell off to the point of a 98 per cent increase. In Mobile and Seattle the declines were fractional.

But in the other 29 cities rents were being forced steadily upward in the face of an appreciable decline in every other essential cost of living.

In Chicago, in the last year, they have been shoved up 31 per cent as compared to the pre-war rates. In December, 1920, Chicago's average home rents were 48.9 per cent over those of 1913. Today they average 89 per cent higher than in 1913.

In New York they have climbed 6 per cent; in Cleveland, 3; in Cincinnati, 3; in Memphis, 11; in St. Louis, 19.

The 9 per cent increase in rental rates are in the face of an average decline in other living costs of 16 per cent from the cost of living level of December, 1920.

Of 24,351,676 families in the United States in 1920, 12,943,598 occupied rented homes.

The total bill for home rents in this country today is close to $3,000,000,000 a year more than in 1913.

OIL BUSINESS IS FIRST IN RECOVERY

Spectacular Return to Prosperity Basis Results from Gains in Price

Oil City, Pa.—The oil business is leading all other industries in spectacular recovery.

Six advances in prices since the last of September have brought Pennsylvania crude oil to $4 a barrel, a rise from $2.25.

Pre-war average price was around $2.50. The 1920 peak was $6.10. Pennsylvania crude is the barometer of general oil prices. Other grades follow it.

Advances in crude oil prices are due to three causes:

First—A price war has broken out, with big refiners getting ready to squeeze the small ones.

Second—Oil production, under low prices, had fallen so far that a shortage was becoming probable.

Third—The rich oil fields of southern Mexico are giving out—going to salt water.

Oil exports from Mexico in September were 17,637,179 barrels. This was not far below last January, the record month. Much of it, however, probably came from "stocks"—tank storage.

Production of all American oil wells was about 1,210,000 barrels a day early in 1921. It rose to a peak of 1,344,120 barrels a day by the middle of June. Production then slumped to 1,156,150 barrels a day, Oct. 1. Production is now mounting, due to more attractive prices.

Crude oil stocks Oct. 1 were 143, 612,000 barrels, a gain of 48 per cent over the low stocks of a year ago. Gasoline consumption in 1921 has been bigger than 1920.

WOMEN PUSH LAWS FOR EQUAL RIGHTS

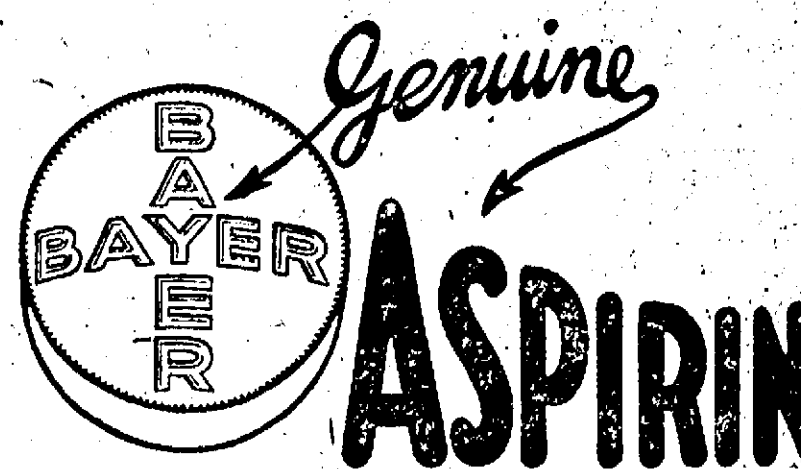

Special to The Post-Crescent
Washington—The twentieth constitutional amendment, calculated to equalize the rights of women and men, threatens to bring about a split in the ranks of feminist leaders.

The amendment prescribes that "no civil or legal disability or inequality on account of sex or marriage, unless applying equally to both sexes, shall exist in the United States."

Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas is expected to introduce the amendment on the senate floor next month. Meanwhile the National Woman's party is giving the measure vigorous aid, pledging to follow it with similar state legislation in all states.

A Coffee Discovery

According to an Arabian legend, Hadji Omar, a pious Dervish, was outlawed from Mecca in the year 1285. When almost dying of hunger in the wilderness, he roasted some of the small round berries he found, growing wild in the thickets. A few of the roasted berries accidentally fell into his drinking water, and thus coffee was discovered.

Many offer you coal today at a price which we cannot meet because of the investment that we have made in the coal business in order to take care of you tomorrow.

You would not call a traveling "doctor" if you were sick; why buy coal from a man who is not an established retail coal merchant? Both practices are dangerous—the one to your health, the other to your fuel satisfaction.

Behind our coal and our coal prices stands a reputation made during the many years we have been in business in this community.

No Other Phonograph Can Do It!

No difference!

No other phonograph even dares the test which the New Edison underwent last Tuesday evening, before a large audience at Lawrence Memorial Chapel. That fact is something for you to think about.

The test of comparison with living artists is the only phonograph test which means anything. It is the only way in which a phonograph can irrefutably prove its realism. It is the most drastic of all phonograph tests. To sustain it, requires absolutely perfect realism, nothing less.

Last Tuesday, the New Edison stood by Gian Ellison's side in Lawrence Memorial Chapel. If you were there, you heard the living voice and the Re-Created voice brought into direct comparison. You know that there was no difference between the two voices.

A similar test was made by Miss Alta Hill with her piano selections. Again the same result—there was no difference between the Re-Created performance and the living performance.

By this wonderful performance, the New Edison has placed itself apart from all other phonographs and talking machines. It alone has sustained this drastic test. It alone has proved concretely and conclusively, that it gives you the living performances of great artists.

The NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph with a Soul"

Any Official Laboratory Model you buy in our store will positively sustain the test made at Lawrence Memorial Chapel. We will give you our guarantee to that effect.

LETTERS TO LOVERS

Depths And Shadows

By Winona Wilcox

How do men regard the woman who forgives them a great wrong? This unique question was suggested by paragraphs like these:

No. 1. The man I am to marry has been receiving love letters from a girl he used to go with. He ended the correspondence when I found out about it and he insists upon marrying me. But I am most unhappy.

It seems to me that he must think me very small and altogether lacking in ideals if I take him as a husband after he has deceived me so. We promised to be faithful always and he broke his pledge while no power in the world could have forced me to break mine.

No. 2. My brother's best friend has been making love to me. And I am a married woman. Unexpectedly, he seized me in his arms and kissed me.

Now I am not afraid of him nor of myself. I can manage the situation perfectly. We have had an understanding. He can't see that he has insulted me.

What worries me is this: The man has been a friend of the family for years. Can he possibly have any respect for me when he places me in such a situation?

No. 3. My husband made love to his office girl. When I discovered it, he begged me to pass over "the incident." I resent his idea that it ever can be "an incident" to me. He swears that he loves me. If I believe him, and forgive him, how will he regard me? As worthy of devotion?

Or as "easy," a wife he can put anything over

I rather think that only a man who has been through it can tell how a man regards the woman he deceives and the one he makes love to unconventionally. But— he never does tell.

I suspect that "respect" doesn't enter into his perspective.

He is thoughtful about any feelings save his own. He doesn't connect the words "respect" or "disrespect" either with the wife he wrongs or the girl he flatters. He is like a child—he sees what he wants and reaches for it completely unconscious of onlookers.

Just an unconsciously, many men disconnect their personal desires from their ideas of ethics in love.

Women, however, take conduct much more seriously. The writers quoted cannot see the different situations as simply as the men did. The engaged girl cannot accept the man's determination to marry her as proof of his unqualified admiration for her. She feels that she is lowering her standard by accepting his. And perhaps she is.

The married woman feels that the lover would not have persecuted her had he respected her. And she may be right.

These situations prove nothing more than that a man's emotions are shallow, when he divides them, so shallow that he cannot comprehend the depths of the misery of the woman involved.

Bake Your Own Cake

A simple cake that is easy "to stir up" and is awfully good with canned fruit is an old-fashioned "marble" cake. This cake has the added virtue of being cheap.

Ella's Marble Cake
Two eggs; 1 1/2 cups sugar; 2 cups flour; 1 cup sweet milk; 3 teaspoons baking powder; 4 tablespoons melted butter; 1 teaspoon vanilla; 4 tablespoons cocoa.

Beat eggs till very light. Beat in sugar. Stir in part of the flour. Dissolve baking powder in milk and add. Stir in the remaining flour. Add melted butter. Add vanilla and beat well for a minute. Divide batter equally and stir cocoa in one part. Put layer of plain batter in a loaf cake pan, add a layer of the cocoa batter, distributing it unevenly, and cover with rest of plain batter. Bake in a moderate oven forty minutes.

Eggless Cake
Two cups flour; 1 1/2 cups sugar; 1 cup sour milk; 1 teaspoon cinnamon; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 1/2 cup seeded and chopped raisins.

Rub shortening into flour with fingers. Stir in sugar. Dissolve soda in milk and stir into mixture. Beat well and add cinnamon, salt and raisins. Turn into a buttered and floured loaf pan and bake forty-five or fifty minutes in a moderate oven.

One cup maple sirup; 2 tablespoons cream.

Put cream and sirup in a smooth sauce pan and put over a slow fire. Bring to the boiling point and skim off scum as it rises. Do not stir during cooking. Boil until a soft ball is formed when tested in cold water. Remove from fire and let cool. Beat until creamy and spread over cake.

Butterless, Eggless, Milkless Cake
One cup brown sugar; 1 cup water; 2 cups seeded raisins; 1-3 cup lard; 1/2 grated nutmeg; 1 teaspoon cinnamon; 1/2 teaspoon cloves; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 1 teaspoon soda; 2 cups flour; 1/2 teaspoon baking powder.

Put first eight ingredients into a sauce pan and boil three minutes. Cool. Add soda dissolved in a little water and stir into mixture. Beat well and turn into a buttered and floured loaf cake pan and bake forty minutes in a moderate oven.

Adventures of the Twins

Oliver Roberts Burton

MR. CODFISH
When Cap'n Pennywinkle had given the Twins their badges, so that they could help him keep order in the Land of the Wiggles, he explained a few things to them. "It's this way," said he. "I can't be everywhere at once, and if I went to all the places where I ought to be, I would have to be multiplied by about 60. I not only have to keep the traffic from jamming under the sea here, but I have to do all sorts of things besides. Only this morning the lobster and the jellyfish got into a quarrel and we had to take the jellyfish home to his family on a stretcher."

Mr. Cod, passing just then, heard the remark and stopped. "Yes, sir," he declared, "and such a time as we had getting hold of him! Did you ever try to get hold of a jellyfish, Miss?"

Nancy looked up in alarm, for once in Topsy-Turvy Land Mr. Codfish almost made a meal of the Twins.

Had it not been for their Green Shoes which took them anywhere, or out of anywhere, I'm afraid they would have been very badly off.

Mr. Codfish recognized the Twins at the same instant that they recognized him and it gave him quite a start.

"Oh, ho!" he sort of chuckled to himself. "Here are the dinners I got cheated out of a long time ago. I may have them yet!" But just then his eye fell upon the badges that Cap'n Pennywinkle had given them and his face fell. That was different! Any one who wore a badge was as safe from the sea creatures as babies in their beds at home.

Mr. Cod smiled foolishly. "Did you ever try to catch hold of a jellyfish, Miss?" he repeated, as though nothing had happened.

"Nancy answered that she hadn't, but if it were anything like picking up jelly she thought it must be difficult."

HIGH SCHOOL LOSES, 42 TO 0, TO BEATRICE ELEVEN

VINCENT'S TEAM LACKS PUNCH TO SCORE TOUCHDOWN

Appleton in Position to Score Three or Four Times—Beatrice Is Fast

Beatrice, Neb., high school football team lived up to its reputation of being one of the most powerful high school squads in the country when it crushed Appleton high school in the Turkey day game at Beatrice, 42 to 0. More than 4,000 persons crowded into the splendid stadium to see the game.

Appleton threatened to score three or four times but lacked the punch to carry the ball over. Once the pigskin was advanced to the Nebraska one yard-line but a poor play resulted in losing the ball and Beatrice spun out of danger.

Beatrice scored its first touchdown early in the game. Appleton kicked to Beatrice which immediately opened with a running attack around the ends. A clever forward pass resulted in a touchdown in a few minutes. Appleton then received the kickoff and carried the ball to the Beatrice 5-yard line where it was lost on downs. Only one touchdown was made in the first period.

In the second quarter Appleton again threatened, stopping on the Nebraska one yard line. Near the close of the quarter Beatrice completed a few long passes and scored another touchdown.

Vincent's men came back strong in the third period and ran the ball from kickoff within the Beatrice 10 yard line where it was fumbled and Beatrice started a dazzling combination of end runs and passes which netted a touchdown. Another was made in that period and two more in the last.

Beatrice has an exceptionally fast backfield while Appleton's backs were unable to put over the winning punch. They also were off color on defensive play.

Appleton made its first downs as often as Beatrice but was held near the Beatrice goal lines. The score does not indicate the relative strength of the teams.

Sport Views And News

The New York Knights of Columbus are trying to book a post season game between "Center" college and Notre Dame on a Gohdridge gridiron either the first or second Saturday in December. This would make a corking good gridiron attraction as both of the teams are clever exponents of the open play. Wouldn't it be a wonderful battle between Mohardt and "Bo" McMillin when it came to the forward passes?

Talo has visions of a championship team on the gridiron next fall. Only four "T" men are lost through graduation. Tad Jones had seven sophomores on his team last fall and they will be available for two years more. Capt. Aldrich will be among the missing and his shoes will be hard to fill but Old Bill feels confident that when next season rolls around the Blues will be up there fighting among the leaders.

Over 200,000 applications for tickets have been received by the Army and Navy officials for the game in New York on Saturday. The seating capacity of the Polo Grounds is 44,000. From the looks of this, there are going to be thousands of disappointed football fans. As a gridiron classic, the annual clash between the government schools gets bigger every day.

LUTHERAN LEAGUE TO BE REVIVED THIS YEAR

A meeting of representatives of Lutheran churches of Oshkosh, New London, Fond du Lac and Neenah with Mt. Olive and St. Paul churches in Appleton will plan for a Lutheran basketball league similar to the one last year. One meeting already has been held and it was decided to revive the league.

Considerable interest in the circuit was shown last year and good basketball was played. The teams were well supported and afforded considerable entertainment.

Moran Is A Jack Of All Trades

MORAN DOES THE COBBLING FOR THE BOYS AT CENTRE

BY BILLY EVANS

Coach Charley Moran of Centre college is a busy individual. In the summer he acts as an umpire in the National League. The umpire job lasts only six months, but it usually provides enough action for most of the arbiters for the entire year.

Charley Moran is the exception. He goes from baseball to football, with a bit of dabbling into the tobacco industry on the side. The section of Kentucky from which he hails, produces some of the finest tobacco in the United States. As a coach Moran is perhaps the busiest mentor of football in the business.

Last year, after the close of the American League season, I was on my way to Erie, Pa., to umpire a ball game that had all the natives of that section of the country on edge. On the train I met a former Harvard football star, just returning from Danville, Ky., where Centre College is located. He had been down scouting the Centre team for about 10 days. As Moran is a warm, personal friend of mine, I asked about him, and the chances of his team to beat Harvard.

"I met Moran in a peculiar way," said the former Harvard man, after telling me that Moran was feeling fine and that he had a team that would worry Harvard. "In all his schools," he continued, "the head football coach is supreme. He has a corps of assistants, a trainer and a number of measures to look after the physical condition of the team, a cobbler to take care of the football shoes, and a tailor to look after the suits, jerseys, pads and the like."

"When I arrived at Centre College, as is now customary in the scouting game, I started to look up the head coach to introduce myself, and announce my mission. Going into the gymnasium, I asked one of the students where I would find Coach Moran. He told me in a small room at the end of the hall. Arriving there, I noticed a man nailing cleats on some football shoes, and looking for all the world like a cobbler. I asked him where I would find Coach Moran. "Talking to him," he said without even stopping his work for an instant. "It took me about a minute to recover, get my bearings and find my speech. Finally I made myself known."

Moran greeted me cordially, apologized for his cobbler attire, and explained how different things were at Centre than at Harvard. Incidentally he asked my further inducement while he repaired a couple of uniforms. "Here was the head coach, a jack of all trades. That was over a year ago. Things are different at Centre now. Moran has put Centre on the football map. Centre's share of the Harvard game probably added enough to the treasury, so that the college can afford a cobbler to look after the football shoes, and a tailor to mend the uniforms."

Pro Football Is Slipping In Larger Cities

The popularity of professional football seems to be on the wane. A year or two ago it looked as if the professional game was sure to go big. A reaction, however, has set in, which makes it seem that the public has soured on the professional "grid" game.

In Cleveland, where the game went big for a time interest seems to have died out to a great extent. In fact the crowds dropped off so badly that it is far more profitable to book games away from home on a straight guarantee, than to gamble with the weather and the enthusiasm of the fans.

It is beginning to look as if football was truly the school and college game. Spirit is what makes the game so attractive from the college standpoint. That spirit is entirely lacking in the professional games. This despite the fact that practically all the leading pro teams are composed almost entirely of former college stars, many of them All-American selections.

A number of the former stars who have turned "pro" seem to have forgotten all about the old college spirit. Instead of playing to the limit of their endurance, they save themselves at every opportunity, and take few if any chances. It is only natural that any sport in which there is a decided lack of effort and interest by those taking part, should sooner or later suffer as a result. That tells the story of professional football.

WRESTLING BOUT IS POSTPONED TO WEDNESDAY, DEC. 7

Weaver's Record Shows That He Deserves Match With George Hill

Because of a big attraction in Appleton theatre the night of Nov. 30, the battle for the heavyweight wrestling championship of Wisconsin between George Hill and "Buck" Weaver has been postponed until Dec. 7. Weaver agreed to the postponement in the date when he learned of conditions here.

Both Hill and Elmer Johnston, promoter, have been searching into the books for Weaver's record and find that he is all that he claims to be. He started wrestling in Wisconsin several years ago but left for the Pacific coast when he found the picking pretty poor. On the coast he has met some of the greatest wrestlers in the game and has victories over many of them. He gave the elder Zyske a terrible battle when they met several months ago.

Hill is working hard for the handicap match with Van Warden at Oshkosh on the night of Dec. 1. He has agreed to throw Van Warden twice in an hour and is confident of turning the trick. If the local man wins that handicap match Oshkosh fans will insist that he wrestle Martinson in their city. Hill says he is willing to take on Martinson as a winner take all basis and it is more than likely that a bout will be arranged.

GIRLS TEAMS TO PLAY PRELIMINARY GAME

Appleton Women's club basketball teams will play their first Appleton game when they appear in a curtain raiser for the Interlake-Forrest game Saturday evening at Armory G. Two picked teams from the club will battle each other. R. L. Gregory will referee the game. All members of the recreation department are expected to get out and back their team.

PRIZE FOR COLLINS

Catcher Pat Collins is going to be one of the leading catchers in the American League next season. If you will take the word of Leo Pohl for it, Lee brought Collins along slowly last year, and the belief is that he will press Hank Severid for the honor of being the Brown's leading backstop next season.

Not A Seat Is Left For Annual Army-Navy Battle

By Henry L. Farrell

New York—Strutting around two hotel lobbies in natty, trim fitting uniforms, Uncle Sam's two quarrelsome nephews were giving most of New York Friday all she could see of the Army-Navy game.

The West Point cadets and the midshipmen from Annapolis had gathered around their camps waiting for the whistle blast that sends them into the annual battle Saturday that 200,000 fans wanted to see and couldn't.

The predominating talk around both camps was not so much "who'll win" as "who can I get a ticket?" and both nephews had the same answer for both—"We don't know."

To keep what little composure that remains after the worst rush of their experience the veteran world's series ticket handlers of the New York Giants locked doors Friday and hung out signs that there wasn't room enough in the Polo grounds to park a hat.

All that remained for most of New York was to camp around the hotel lobbies for a look at the boys who are going to furnish the amusement Saturday for the lucky 45,000 ticket holders.

GOBS ARE CHESTY

Chesty navy officers from dignitaries with the braided caps down to ensigns just out a year circulated around army headquarters willing to take a general or a shavetail for everything he had at 9 to 5 and some 2 to 1.

Some betting was being done by the army but most of the soldier officers were waiting for word about French, the great West Point back who may not be able to play. Without the fleet footed, line crashing French the "experts" figured the Navy close to a 2 to 1 shot to win.

The Navy squad numbering forty huskies slipped in Thursday and got not working out for an hour on the Polo grounds. The Army delegation arrived Friday morning from the West Point Plains and will divide the afternoon with their rivals for final limbering up.

Every one is ready for the game. Only the weather remains doubtful and the forecast promises a good day. All details of the program have been fixed even to the location of the hitching post for the Navy goat and the Army mule.

Coach Bob Folwell of the Navy announced his lineup this morning as follows: Ends, Parr and Taylor; tackles, King and Weidern; guards, Carney and Frawley; center, Larson (captain); quarterback, Conroy; backs, Koehler, Barbet and Cruise.

French was not in the following lineup announced by Coach Daley of the Army: Ends, Storck and Meyers; tackles, Mulligan and Davidson; guards, Bredster and Garbisch; center, Greene (captain); quarterback, Willhite; backs, Wood, Lawrence and Smythe.

SEYMOUR BASKET TEAM TAKES FALL OUT OF BAY SQUAD

Green Bay Professional Team Loses, 35 to 31, in Hard Game

Seymour basketball fans this week are rejoicing over the victory which their squad won over the Reimer Wieners of Green Bay last Monday night after a spirited battle. The Wieners, who will represent Green Bay in the Central Wisconsin Professional Basketball league, were to Seymour expecting to win in easy fashion. The game was scheduled for a little workout but when they got through with one of the hardest nights in their lives the Seymour boys were on the long end of a 35 to 21 score. All of which is hard for Green Bay to swallow and is the cause of the Seymour rejoicing.

Seymour is particularly elated over the win because the sports scribes in the Bay town had referred to Seymour as a rural village and indicated that they felt rather patronizing toward the Outagamie county city.

Green Bay was leading at the end of the first half, 25 to 21, but Seymour came back in great style and soon forged ahead, keeping the lead to the end. Fielder, Seymour, and Kapp, Green Bay, were injured in the first period and were out of the rest of the game. Nichols took Fielder's place and Muthy went in for Kapp. Both played fine games.

A week ago Seymour won from the Kaukauna American legion team and its next game is with Black Creek. It is probable that Seymour will be given a chance to show Appleton fans what it can do if a battle can be arranged with the Appleton team of the professional league.

MOORE HAS THE STUFF

What southpaw in the American League has the most stuff? American League batters fear Roy Moore of the Athletics as much as any portside in the organization. To many of the fans who have heard little of Moore, that will be quite a surprise. Moore lacks ambition and control, two great drawbacks. His people have plenty of money, and he plays simply for pleasure. If Moore took pitching seriously he would be a tough bird to beat.

Fight Slow Draw

THE housewife should take advantage of the fact that tenderness and appearance together with the quality of the meat is largely responsible for the retail price. The facts are that the better cuts of meat are by far the most economical from every standpoint. The housewife can get more for her money by purchasing better cuts of meat and serving them in a tender manner. Statistics show that 30% of the average income is spent for foods, which makes these points all the more important.

30 Fat Women Trying To Graduate To Thin Class

New York Health Department Has Contest With Many "Heavy" Entries

By Alice Roha
New York.—It may be true that nobody loves a fat man, but the same can't be said of the fat woman. The thirty most popular women in all New York—judging from the attention they get—are the fat fighting fans in the Health Department's reducing contest. Most of them are married. Nineteen-year-old Ethel Gray (she says this is her nom de plume, her real name being Mrs. Jennie Libowitz) weighed 200 pounds when she got married 14 months ago. When she entered the fat-reducing contest Oct. 25th, she weighed 270. Today she weighs 268 pounds.

Ethel admits she would be a riot in Turkey, where feminine charms are weighed by the pound. She is only five feet two, which makes her fatter in proportion to her height than any woman in the contest. And there is only one heavier—and she is five feet seven inches tall.

FAT OR FILMS?
Ethel is torn between fat and films. "They want me in the movies and if there's any money in my fat it seems a shame to lose it," said Ethel. "Still the movie man said I'd be good down to 200 pounds. Of course, I had hoped to lose 150 pounds." Ethel spoke of this as the rest of us talk gleefully about losing six ounces.

"I've lost fourteen pounds already—but two came back."
Ethel, it seems, fell off the bread wagon.

"Honest, I just couldn't help it," she explained. "I'm crazy about hot bread, and one night the smell of it drove me crazy and I weakened."

"If I want a job outside the movies I've got to reduce. When I asked for a job in an office, they told me they hadn't advertised for an office force."

As the members of the fat-fighting class, clad in gray sweaters over rubber shirts and bloomers, came, perspiring and heavily breathing, from

"SAY IT WITH MUSIC"

EVERYBODY WANTED TO KNOW HOW GAME ENDED

Two members of the office force of the Appleton Y. M. C. A. were kept busy Thursday afternoon and evening answering telephone calls from local high school football fans and followers of the Orange and Blue eleven who called for the Beatrice-Appleton football game results.

Calls came in as early as 2 o'clock in the afternoon and kept up until closing time. One count gave the number of calls as 212 but the count was not started until late in the afternoon.

Requests are received daily by the chamber of commerce asking for the survey of the cost of living as outlined and charted by Hugh G. Cobett, secretary of the chamber of commerce. The survey shows the increase of the prices of living necessities since 1915 and also the declines in the various commodities during the last few months in Appleton.

Henry Stake of Shiocton, was in Appleton Wednesday on business. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stake, formerly of Wisconsin Rapids, formerly Appleton residents, are spending a few days visiting friends here.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The Milk Dealers of Appleton have agreed not to use each other's milk bottles, therefore will hereafter only use bottles with our monogram, and we kindly ask the public for cooperation, to-wit, if anybody gets milk at a store where they sell milk in plain bottles, or with the initials A. M. D. A. then be so kind and set that bottle aside until you go to that store again, then take it back to the place where it belongs, or vise versa, if you get milk at a store where they sell Pasteurized Milk, you will find all such bottles bearing our monogram, then please take the bottle to the store where you got it, and in that way avoid exchanging and mixing bottles. The law provides that it is an offense to use another dealer's bottles, therefore the public will grant a great favor to all milk dealers if they make it a point to return their milk bottles to the dealer where they get them.

Yours very truly,

APPLETON PURE MILK CO.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS
Take a Tablespoonful of Salts in Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers
We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.
The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.
When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging urines in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism about four corners of Jod Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will feel fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.
Jod Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

LET'S MAKE THIS AN OLD-FASHIONED CHRISTMAS

Open House in TOYLAND

Let's make this an old-fashioned Christmas for the children—one they will never forget. Do you remember when you were a small boy or girl? It wasn't the quantity of things that Santa Clause brought you that is still remembered—BUT, right in front of everything else was the mechanical train or the big doll that you had been hoping for. Here's a great Toyland full to the brim with the things children like—every childhood dream is on these counters.

Lamps and Shades And the Christmas Shade Class

The class for making lamp shades is in the charge of a competent instructress and meets daily. Under her direction you can make the most elaborate of shades yourself—and the materials will be the only cost.

Floor lamps are distinctive gifts. The shades are graceful and the shades glow beautifully with the color of your room.

There are floor models with bases of mahogany and polychrome. One may choose from the three-quarter and full heights as well as the junior sizes.

Then there are the bridge lamps—unexcelled for a good reading light. They have mahogany, polychrome and wrought iron bases with silk or parchment shades.
